Lindy Says U. S. Prolongs War

U. S. AID PROLONGS WAR, LINDY CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh said today that by aiding Great Britain and other countries the United States "is encouraging war, prolonging it and increasing bloodshed in Europe without materially affecting the course of the war."

Testifying in opposition to the Administration's British aid bill before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Lindbergh said in a prepared statement if this country is ever invaded "the responsibility will lie with those who send our arms abroad."

Under questioning by Sen. Connally (D.) of Texas, the 39-year-old Atlantic flier declared the nation already was committed to giving Britain some aid.

"We should keep our promises," he declared, then added:

"I think it is very important that England not be beaten in war, but I don't think that is in American control."

BLAMES U. S. AID

Lindbergh then said he believed repeal of this country's arms embargo two years ago had "encouraged war' in Europe.

"I think that our taking part in this war in Europe will prove to have prolonged the war, not to have materially affected the war, and I am afraid all those countries over there will be accusing us of that in the next few years," he said.

"Then you think that by giving aid to Britain we are encouraging the war?" Conolly asked.

Replying affirmatively, Lindbergh added that American help to belligerents abroad encouraged, prolonged and increased bloodshed.

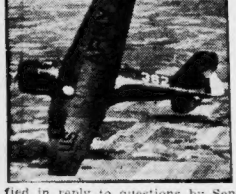
Preceding Lindbergh before the Senate group was Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune.

WOLDR SEIZE BASES

McCormick did not express an opinion on the legislation but testified he favored occupying British and French island possessions "by force" if that were necessary to prevent Germany from using them as bases for an attack on the United States.

In response to questions, the publisher said he would like for the United States to "have" the Azores, Portuguese possession in the mid-Atlantic, "right away."

At one point, Lindbergh testified in reply to questions by Senator Barkley (D.) of Kentucky that he did not believe the United States should aid Greece in its fight against Italy. Secretary of the Navy Knox disclosed yesterday Greece had been offered 30 Navy planes now on the aircraft carrier Wasp.



Lindbergh went on to say he believed the nation's air strength was being weakened materially by the policy of permitting other nations to obtain a "great majority" of the

U. S. War Backers Able to Find Action In Canada Airforce

By AUSTEN LAKE

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 6—This is no free advertisement for the Royal Canadian Airforce. It is intended as no enticement to American youth to plunge into war's maelstrom. But it is a prod to those vociferous U. S. rush-to-war tongue-throwers who are preaching "direct action" while refraining from offering their own skin, blood and bones for immediate service.

So this is a plain, blunt statement of fact—that any sincere, able-bodied American of fighting age and trim can, without prejudice to creed or forfeit of his U. S. citizenship, join the Canadian airforce merely by transporting himself, prepaid, across the border and there submitting his credentials.

If he is of good character, grounded in educational fundamentals, isn't married, has no criminal record, etc., he can enlist at one of the 17 air recruiting stations, be uniformed in the RCAF's slate-blue, begin drawing the base pay of $1.30 a day, and be subject to the rigors of the Commonwealth Air Training plan.

SIMPLE AS THAT!

For any sincere U. S. "direct actionist," it's as simple as that!

Once enlisted, if he has no flaws of mind, body or character; if he shows a natural aptitude with precision instruments, doesn't bleed at the ears in high altitudes, shows normal fighting instinct and nerve reflex, he will be graduated within 21 weeks and, mayhap, find himself patrolling the springtime skies over the English channel in time for the anticipated "Invasion Blitz."

Many Americans have done this. Many more had tried. For more than 7 per cent of the student fliers, observers, air gunners, wireless operators and whatnot in the Commonwealth air plan are native "Yanks."

For those American readers who are not acquainted with the Commonwealth Air Training Plan, the writer inserts this explanatory outline. The C. A. T. P. was formulated by the British government in collaboration with the dominions and colonial states of the Empire at the start of the war.

TO EXCEED SUM

Its first estimated cost of $600,000,000, of which Canada's share was to be more than one half, will greatly exceed that sum. But, with a total of 83 schools and air training centers of various types and a capacity of around 25,000 or more air men annually, its purpose is three fold:

1—To provide trained airmen of

2 BILLION AID BILL LIMIT LOSES, 151-96

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (INS)—Administration forces won the first major test of the lease-lend bill today when the House rejected a substitute measure which would have merely provided for $2,000,000,000 in loans or gifts to nations battling the Axis powers.

The action was taken on a 151 to 96 standing vote, and a second vote—this one where tellers counted the standing members instead of the presiding officer—was ordered.

The vote was 206 to 145. Taken by tellers, it did not place the members on records as would a roll call ballot.

The vote followed party lines with most Democrats against the substitute, most Republicans supporting it.

The G. O. P. took another setback a moment later when a proposal by Rep. Maas (R.) of Minnesota, to accept British western hemisphere possessions in exchange for aid, as ruled out of order.

Sponsored by Rep. Mundt of South Dakota, Republican member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, the substitute would have stripped the proposed law of the vast grants of presidential power provided in the administration's bill.

Mundt, in pleading for adoption of his proposal, declared that the Administration's bill "makes the President of the United States the director-general of the war."

The triumph for the Roosevelt forces came only a few hours after they had been forced to make further concessions to the opposition. At a meeting of the Democratic members of the foreign affairs committee this morning, the group voted to accept two more modifying amendments before the bill is passed and sent to the Senate.

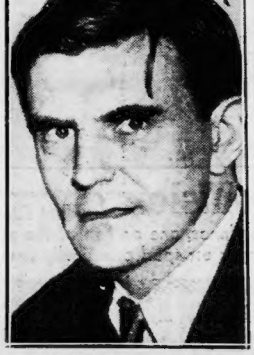
The amendments provide for a congressional declaration against carrying goods to England in American ships, and a time limit on the power of the President to obligate the government on contracts for which Congress has not appropriated money.

The committee rejected the so-called compromise proposal of Rep. Wadsworth (R.) of New York to put a $4,000,000,000 "ceiling" on the measure.

Chairman Bloom (D.) of New York, of the committee, announced that another session of the committee will be held tomorrow morning to consider further amendments, if necessary.

$1,124,500,000 JAP BUDGET

TOKYO, Feb. 6 (AP)—The Japanese House of Representatives approved today a budget of extraordinary war expenditures totaling 4,800,000,000 yen ($1,124,500,000) for the period beginning April 1 and ending Jan. 31, 1942.



JOHN G. WINANT
In Kennedy's Post

Winant New Envoy To Britain

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (INS)—President Roosevelt today sharply realigned the American diplomatic corps in the trouble zones in a shakeup topped by the appointment of John G. Winant, New Hampshire Republican, as ambassador to Great Britain.

Winant will succeed Joseph P. Kennedy, who recently resigned.

Highlight of the shakeup was an order for Nelson P. Johnson of Oklahoma, now ambassador to China, and Clarence E. Gauss of Connecticut, now minister to Australia, to swap posts.

The White House, in sending the new diplomatic nominations to the Senate explained carefully that although Johnson technically stepped down from his ambassadorial rank in China to become minister to Australia, actually he was being rewarded with a quiet post after years of extremely valuable and difficult service in turbulent China.

Still a third innovation came when President Roosevelt designated Anthony J. Drexel Biddle of Pennsylvania, now ambassador to Poland, to serve concurrently without additional pay, as the American envoy to the governments of Belgium, Norway, and the Netherlands in exile in London.

The President elevated the American legation at Montevideo to an embassy and nominated William Dawson of Minnesota, now ambassador to Panama, to become first ambassador to Uruguay. Edwin C. Wilson of Florida, present minister to Uruguay, becomes the new ambassador to Panama.

Bert Fish of Florida was transferred from his present post as minister to Egypt to a like portfolio in Portugal.

Alexander Irk Kof Illinois, who has been counselor of the American embassy at Rome, was named minister to Egypt.

Herbert C. Pell of Rhode Island, Hungary, leaving his present post in Portugal.

CANADA AIRLINER CRASH KILLS 12

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Feb. 6 (AP)—Nine passengers and three crew members of a Trans-Canada Airlines plane were found dead today when the wreckage of the plane, missing since early this morning, was found near Armstrong, 391 miles east of here.

The cause of the crash was not immediately disclosed.

The plane, bound for Winnipeg and unreported since is flew over Armstrong at 3:47 a. m., at which time a light snow was falling. Flying conditions, however, generally were reported good.

Pilot W. T. Twiss advised the ground crew he was heading in for a landing, but when he failed to set the plane down officials of the Trans-Canada Air Lines were notified.

TCA officials issued the following list of those on board:

Crew:

Capt. W. E. Twiss, Winnipeg; First Officer, C. F. Lloyd, Winnipeg, and Miss M. G. Mayne, Winnipeg, stewardess.

Passengers; Mrs. R. D. Carter, Vancouver; E. Malone, Toronto; F. W. F. Gaston, Winnipeg; H. Moss, Toronto; Prof. Robert McQueen, Winnipeg; Lieut. Comm. H. H. Harlowe, Ottawa; F. C. Manning, Vancouver; J. F. Freer, Winnipeg and L. E. Davidson, Vancouver.

Gen. Johnson Flies Here for Radio Talk

Scheduled to arrive in Boston today was Gen. Hugh Johnson, to greet Gov. Saltonstall and to speak over a radio network—but the general was hours late.

Instead of meeting the governor, Gen. Johnson will fly in, speak at a meeting sponsored by Boston's America First Committe, and fly out.

Head of the local America First Committee is Atty. James C. Bayley, Jr. Tudor Gardiner, Jr., will preside at the meeting, and Gen. Johnson will be introduced by Capt. John J. Murphy.

Army Planes Hit In Air, Pilot Dies

FARMINGDALE, N. Y., Feb. 6 (AP)—Two Army pursuit planes collided in mid-air near this Long Island town today.

The Army information service said it understood 1st Lieut. John H. Eakin, pilot of one of the planes, was killed as the ships crashed to earth near a lumber yard. The other officer, 2d Lieut. Joseph Laycock, bailed out and suffered a broken ankle

Soviets Belatedly Congratulate F.D.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—President Roosevelt has received belated congratulations on his inauguration for a third term from the Soviet Union.

The message, dated Moscow, Jan. 27, and made public by the State Department today, was from Michail Kalinin, chairman of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

EDITH ANDERSON

Wife Turns Upon Eloper For Love Lie

For the first time, it was learned today why Mrs. Josephine Farese, after first speaking forgiveness to her "eloper" husband, City Councilor Alfred P. Farese of Everett, suddenly turned on him and said she was "all through."

Farese lied to her about his 3000-mile "honeymoon" jaunt to Mississippi with 17-year-old Edith Anderson of East Boston, the young and pretty wife and mother asserted today to Atty. Guy Taschetta.

"If he had told me the truth I would have forgiven him," she said, according to the lawyer.

"I would far rather have had him told me the truth. I could forgive him for losing his head momentarily over a girl, but I cannot forgive deceit."

With her words she ended today an interview with the attorney which he had hoped might result in a reconciliation between the Fareses.

She told the attorney, she said, that in yesterday's secret conference with Farese, which ended with high words, he attempted to make her believe he took Edith Anderson south in order to get her a job.

He insisted, he said, that nothing wrong had occurred on the trip and that his own intention really had been to attempt to get a post as a G-man in Washington.

Now, said Mrs. Farese, she can believe nothing he tells her.

She had gone to see him at East Boston police station on his return, offering him her hand in forgiveness and seeking the real story of what happened.

But after a day which saw Farese arraigned on an abduction charge, and young Edith charged with being a runaway, he apparently was unwilling to beg forgiveness.

The meeting between man and wife was held secretly at the home of a friend after a hearing date of Feb. 18 was set on the charges he must face. It was arranged by Farese's counsel, Atty. Taschetti.

The couple were left in a room together, at the secret meeting place, reportedly the home of friends, and it was after Mrs. Farese had been driven back to her parents' home in Montrose st., Everett, following the conference, that she made her announcement—a complete reversal from her earlier attitude.

QUIZZED BY G-MEN

In East Boston court earlier, before Judge Charles J. Brown, Farese pleaded not guilty to a charge of abduction, and Edith to being a runaway girl and a stubborn and disobedient child.

The Everett City Councilor was immediately bailed, and Edith was turned over to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

While they were waiting arraignment, the girl chewing gum indifferently and looking at the "funnies" in the newspapers, two agents of the FBI appeared and questioned them at some length.

MAN, 70, GAVE HER CAR, $4000

Mrs. Marion R. Bell, 46-year-old Boston beauty parlor operator living in Methuen, filled in all his checks for Joseph R. Parker, one-time wealthy Haverhill paper manufacturer, she admitted today in probate court.

Parker, 70 years old, now is an inmate of a home for penniless aged, according to testimony in the trial growing out of objections to an accounting report by Mrs. Bell as conservatrix of his estate.

Mrs. Bell

The account covers a period from Jan. 11, 1938, to Sept. 20, 1938, and shows $12,989.06 as having been received and a like amount paid out.

Back on the stand today, Mrs. Bell admitted that, in addition, to various gifts, including $4000, she received from Parker, she also got from him a check to buy an automobile.

COURT DOUBTS HER

At times Mrs. Bell's testimony was interrupted by the judge, who once commented:

"Either the witness has an unbelievably faulty memory or isn't answering truthfully."

Mrs. Bell, under cross-examination by Atty. Edward McLaughlin, said that in Parker's will she is referred to as "private secretary."

Q—At whose suggestion were the words "private secretary" used? A—Mr. Parker's.

Q—Were you his private secre-

MARY EXERCISES TO IMPROVE POSTURE
Stretches Arms Back, Rises on Toes

By MARY X. SULLIVAN

I'm not quite down to department-store model proportions, yet, but it won't be long now! I've lost another pound and a half today.

I was very good about my diet all week, and yesterday skipped my customary two slices of bread and butter. I had a fruit salad for lunch; grapefruit, a lamb chop, asparagus without butter, and squash for dinner. That's a pretty low-calorie day, which may account for the loss.

Finish Tape's Near, Mary!

Well, it's all over but the shouting, now. Whew! A pound and a half in a single day and our Mary, who tipped the scales at 129 a few short weeks ago, now thumbs her nose at avoir du pois with a scant 116 pounds. Just goes to show what a gal can do if she sets her mind (and meals) to it.

I also walked a lot yesterday, and I don't mean strolled. I remind myself to walk as if I were late for an appointment, which is too often quite true.

This leaves me with only seven pounds to go in my saga of losing 20 of my original 129 pounds. And to all who are muttering at me about injuring my health, I declare that I have never felt so well nor so energetic.

I am asked if I don't get tired or hungry between meals. The answer is no—unless I defer my dinner hour. I dine about seven, but if I'm to eat my principal meal later than that, I have a glass of milk to stave off starvation.

I promised yesterday to give you some pointers on posture. And good posture, incidentally, does not mean holding yourself stiff as one of the guards at St. James', with the shoulders thrown exaggeratedly back.

If you are standing correctly, your shoulders will take care of themselves. They should be relaxed. Thrusting them back and your chest out only helps to give you a away-back spine.

The thing to do is to haul in your abdomen and try to push out the middle of your spine, mentally trying to touch the spine to a wall all the way down. When you sit, don't perch. (We half-pints are at a disadvantage here, because we must perch in order not to have our feet dangle.)

Sit well back in your chair or subway seat. Try to rest the entire length of your spine against the

BUCKLEY ON STAND, DENIES ALL, REPUDIATES CONTRACT

State Auditor Thomas J. Buckley took the stand in his own defense today at the hearing on the petition seeking to oust him for alleged violation of the corrupt practices act in winning his high State position and entered a blanket denial of charges that he had ever contracted to give jobs to campaign aides in the event of winning the November election.

Shown the alleged contract with Philip A. Burns, Hanover st. photo-engraver, purporting to promise Burns $3000 or a job as second deputy auditor, Buckley told the three Superior Court justices conducting the hearing he had never seen the document before and repudiated the signature as his.

DENIES CASH OFFERS

The State Auditor identified "the group" which worked for his nomination as Alexander F. Sullivan, Frank McQuade, Philip A. Burns, John F. Welch (now his confidential secretary) and Miss Rose K. Apkerian, but denied authorizing Burns or the others to offer jobs or pay out money for campaign backing.

Specifically, he denied promising McQuade, Burns or Welch $7000 out of his $12,000 two-year salary in lieu of employment.

Buckley said he "fell out" with certain members of the group when Capt. Francis M. Doyle of West Roxbury, one of the petitioners, suggested he form a committee to obtain support.

He refused, he testified, and continued his practice of addressing WPA workers and talking at gas stations.

TELLS OF WARNING

Further argument ensued, he said, when he refused to make radio speeches or add former Rep. George Leary (defeated for Congress at the last election) to his campaign group.

On his final disagreement with Burns, Buckley testified:

"I told Burns: 'If I find you going out and collecting any money I'll double-check on you, and it'll be too bad.'"

He said he warned Burns not to form an organization to collect money.

Buckley denied having 'spirited' Miss Apkerian to Worcester in order to prevent her appearance at a Ballot Law Commission hearing.

"She asked to be taken by auto to see Worcester relatives," he said.

Huge Bedford Airport O.K'd

The State Legislature's military affairs committee, breaking a three-week deadlock, recommended passage today of a bill for construction of a big airport in Bedford, for which the federal government already has allotted nearly $200,000 as a defense measure.

The measure would permit the state to spend $10,000 for acquisition of the land, and the federal government would construct the airport as an auxiliary to the Boston airport, turning it over to the state for maintenance and operation.

20 Given Back Pay of $100,000

CINCINNATI, Feb. 6 (AP) — About 20 employes of the Dow Chemical Co., Midland, Mich., will receive approximately $100,000 in back pay as the result of action by the Sixth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals today in ordering enforcement, with slight modifications, of an NLRB order against the firm.

The board on July 25, 1939, directed the firm to cease alleged domination and recognition of the Midland Chemical Mine Workers' Ass'n; purported discouragement of membership in the United Mine Workers of America (CIO); specified that 25 former employes be reinstated and that 20 discharged workers be reimbursed with back pay.

In its answers, Dow contended that those discharged were ringleaders in a suspected strike movement.

Rob Manville Home of $5000

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Feb. 6 (AP)—Burglars slipped through one of the most elaborate private guard systems in the country last night and stole $5000 in cash from the palatial home of Thomas (Tommy) Manville, asbestos heir.

The Manville mansion is surrounded by high walls surmounted by guard houses and searchlights. One of the guards discovered the theft today. Manville had passed the night in New York.

Last Word in Bad Money Is Bogus Confederate Bill

NORTH TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 6 (INS)—It was insult added to injury.

So ran the complaint today of a local automobile agency which accepted as down payment on a car three old $50 bills the purchaser said he had found in a trunk at his home.

One of the bills came back from the bank. Not only was it Confederate money, dated 1863, but it was counterfeit.

Socialite Held for Wife's Death

GREENWICH, Ct., Feb. 6 (AP) —Socially prominent Charles H. Talcott, Jr., 31, a New York architect, was held for the superior court today on a charge of manslaughter arising from the death of his wife, Hope, in an auto accident here on Dec. 10.

Judge Lewis E. Sisson, in Town Court, paroled him into custody of his attorney, Barclay Robinson, until bail could be arranged.

Dr. John A. Clarke, medical examiner, testified Mrs. Talcott, the former Hope Cheney of Manchester, had met almost instant death when she was hurled through the top of the Talcott machine when it overturned in the accident. Talcott was driving at the time.

Clarke testified Talcott was "agitated and disturbed" when examined at police headquarters. He told Prosecutor L. Paul Burke it was "hard to tell" whether Talcott was under the influence of liquor. In answer to questions by Judge Sisson, he testified there was a "strong odor of liquor" about the architect and he was "unsteady."

James Healy, Greenwich police investigator, expressed the belief, in testimony, that the accident was a "case of probably going too fast."

Previously Coroner Theodore E. Steiber had found Talcott "criminally responsible" for his wife's death and had attributed the accident to "liquor, high speed and wool gathering."

SOUTH END DRINKING FLAYED

A picture of the South End of Boston as a "liquor-sodden Hell's Kitchen where drunken men are held on bar stools while whiskey is poured down their throats, where no woman is safe to walk the streets," was painted at a hearing before the Boston Licensing Board today.

The hearing was on the petition of Abraham L. Frank, president and manager of the World Liquor Mart, Inc., of Washington st., South End, to transfer his license to Tremont st., South End.

Rev. A. F. Reimer, pastor of the Tremont St. Methodist Church, located diagonally across from the propsed new location, said:

"The South End is overwhelmed with liquor places now. Last Sunday night after services my wife and I left the church and went to my car. When I opened the door I found a young and very well dressed woman sitting in the back seat, smoking a cigarette.

"She was so drunk she couldn't get out of my car and she asked me for a push. I gave her a push. That was the only way she got out of the car.

"On other occasions I've found as many as 24 liquor bottles—all empty—on the church lawn. Members of the church frequently pass groups of men at corners, drinking openly out of bottles. The place is becoming a Hell's itchen."

Frederick Shibley, editor of the Midtown Journal, testified:

"I've seen men so drunk they had to be held on bar stools and whiskey poured down their throats. Competition in the South End is that stiff."

Dr. E. G. Maloof described entering South End homes where the mothers and fathers were drunk, thec hildren sick.

FUMES FELL 7 IN TAUNTON

TAUNTON, Feb. 8—Seven persons, all members of the family of Frank Leonard, former New England 118-pound boxing champion, were overcome by illuminating gas in their home here today.

Mrs. Catherine Leonard, 52, the mother of the family, was in most serious condition. Her name was placed on the danger list at Morton Hospital, and only a series of coincidences, police said, averted death of the entire family.

Frank Leonard arose at 5:30 a. m. today to go to work. Before he left the house he telephoned his sister, Mrs. Margaret Westgate of Belmont st., to come over; that their mother seemed ill.

Mrs. Westgate arrived with her son, Ronald, seven, and found that not only was her mother ill, but also her father, Charles, 54; her brother, John, 21, and her sisters, Catherine, 27, and Janice, 10.

All the family were awake, and none had yet realized that gas was seeping into the house from a gas main outside. Mrs. Westgate, however, called on Dr. Joseph Murphy. Dr. Murphy arrived and as he talked to Mrs. Westgate she and the other members of the family began to collapse. He called police.

Officers on arrival were told there were six victims; but as Mrs. Westgate was being carried into the ambulance she asked for Janice. It was only then Dr. Murphy and the police found the little girl unconscious in a top-floor bedroom.

Police found gas in the cellars of three other houses in the block, and gas company employees were called.

500 Draftees a Day Join Army in N. E.

The Army today began the stupendous task of inducting 500 New England trainees a day for the next six weeks while Massachusetts prepared to choose a record-breaking quota of 9100 men for its own Yankee Division.

Officers at Ft. Devens were ready to handle 508 arrivals by dusk tonight in the third selective service call. By Feb. 18 there will be 5020 men from Massachusetts, Connecticut, Maine and Vermont inducted into service here and assigned to other camps after an average stay of only three days.

The fourth conscription call will summon more than 6000 New Englanders through the Devens "clearing house," all to be outfitted and stationed elsewhere in the period from Feb. 18 to 28.

9100 CALLED

Starting March 1, the Army will face its most difficult task yet—handling 9100 Massachusetts men summoned in a fifth call, which is the largest yet for any state in the Union.

Many of this record quota will be sent directly to a new induction center at Camp Edwards from local acceptance centers, and all will be used to bring the Yankee Division now at Camp Edwards to its wartime strength of 17,500 men.

This will leave Massachusetts with a quota of only 3322 trainees to be summoned before July 1, when the nation completes its first quotas under the selective service act. Completion of this fifth draft call will bring a total of 17,234 Bay Staters into service.

The vanguard of the 20,000-odd trainees to be called to the colors in New England in the next two months will be selected today at induction centers in Boston, Worcester and Springfield. There will be 269 called to the new induction center in Columbus ave., with 48 reporting at Worcester and 40 in Springfield.

Reds' New 'Chute Troops Drop 15,000 Feet With Skis

MOSCOW, Feb. 6 (AP)—Ski parachutists have been introduced in Soviet Russia's civil air fleet.

In their first tryout, 12 of the skiers dropped from a passenger plane at an altitude of 13,000 feet, accompanied by a freight parachute which landed 12 pairs of skis.

On landing, the parachutists buckled on the skis and marched over the snow to their objective.

GIRL FAINTS IN COURT

SALEM, Feb. 6—Ten minutes after court opened today for the trial of John W. Henry, former special officer of the Salisbury police, charged with the death of Mrs. Olive Farrell, Salisbury Beach hotel hostess, a recess of 90 minutes was taken when Court Stenographer John J. McKenney of Swampscott, fainted.

On the witness stand at the time was Dr. Alan R. Moritz, professor of pathology at Harvard. He had just testified, under cross-examination by Atty. Michael J. Batal, counsel for Henry, that he could not tell how old some of the bruises on Mrs. Farrell's body were.

Closely following the testimony was Edward Farrell, of Wells st., Lawrence, estranged husband of Mrs. Farrell. They had been separated for 17 years.

While Stenographer McKenney was being replaced by Miss Edna B. Silver, Dist. Atty. Hugh A. Cregg stated that "day and night and Saturday sessions" would be held to expedite the taking of testimony.

Army Buying to Hold Civilian Prices Down

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—Army buyers, with a staggering shopping list for millions of pants, shirts, shoes, socks and blankets, claimed today to have developed a long-range purchase schedule that will save important sums for the civilian public as well as the government.

Businessmen who have directed buying for private mail-order and mercantile firms worked out the system when the War Department faced the problem of outfitting the 1,400,000 men who are expected to be in the army before this year ends.

It was important to time the huge army purchases so they would not increase the cost of similar staples for civilians.

War Department and National Defense spokesmen presented their plan to Congress and the House promptly approved a $175,000,000 fund to carry it out. The Senate may act on the legislation today.

Army buyers explained that when government purchases boost the cost of an item from $4 to $5, civilians may have to pay as much as $1.87 more, because army buying eliminates profits of the jobber and retailer.

JUMP IN PRICES

In the first rush of army buying, they said, the price of raw wool increased 44 per cent, horse hides 26 per cent, certain cotton goods 26 per cent, and cow hides, needed for shoes, nearly 50 per cent.

One purchasing officer estimated that clothing and kindred costs had advanced an average of 15 per cent since start of the defense program.

For example, the army buyers said each soldier added to the army requires during his first year a minimum of eight pairs of shoes. Similarly for the coming spring, each soldier needs four pairs of cotton pants and four cotton shirts.

By placing orders for these well in advance, during normally slack seasons of these industries, army buyers said they could hold prices down, avoid interference with civilian markets, and help stabilize employment.

BUYING SCATTERED

They testified that President Roosevelt had ordered that defense buying be scattered geographically. On a recent order for 1,500,000 pairs of army shoes, no manufacturer was allowed to bid on more than 225,000 pairs.

If prices or manufacturing costs appear too high, national defense officals said they refused to let orders and call in representatives of the industries for a complete study.

The $175,000,000 purchase program now before Congress is in additon to $468,639,097 already voted for the present fiscal year and a budget estimate of $247,758,000 for clothing and equipment for next year.

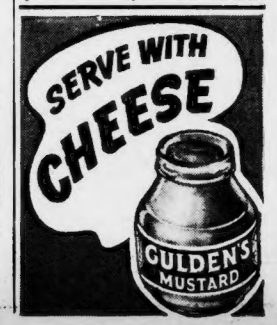
Fund Over Top By $23,000

A last ditch battle by a hard-pressed army of volunteer workers was credited today with putting the Greater Boston 1941 Community Fund Drive over the top with a total of $4,906,333 or $23,000 more than the goal.

A jubilant gathering of 1400 at the final report dinner at the Hotel Statler cheered announcement the mark they set for themselves on Jan. 18 had been over-subscribed.

Gasps of surprise accompanied the news that in the final day, with some $283,000 needed, the volunteer army raised $306,333. The fund will be used for support of 212 hospitals, health and social service agencies assisting more than 400,000 people in Greater Boston.

Mayor Tobin, recalling that the campaign had been halted by an epidemic of influenza and a heavy snowstorm, congratulated the committees and General Chairman Henry R. Guild upon their success.



Jungle Lion Hunt Interests Willkie

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 6 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, on his way home after a strenuous study of the British lion at war, is ready now to shoot some lions in the African jungle.

Appraised that the governor of Portuguese Guinea proposed to invite him on a jungle shooting party on his arrival in Bolama, first stop on the southern air route to the United States, Willkie declared:

"I wouldn't mind killing a couple of lions."

He left Lisbon at midnight last night as one of the pioneer passengers on a new transatlantic plane route to New York by way of Portuguese Guinea, on the African west coast; British Trinidad and Puerto Rico. This new route avoids the ground swells at Horta, the Azores, which often have hampered operations.

Willkie, accompanied by John Cowles, president of the Minneapolis Star-Journal, and Landon K. Thorne, banker, who went to England with him, is not scheduled to arrive in New York until early Saturday at the earliest.

In London, the Daily Herald said today Willkie's parting denunciation of the Nazi regime—"Tell the German people that we German-Americans reject and hate the aggression and lust for power of the German government"—already was on its way to the German people by the "underground route" and would be scattered far and wide over Germany in a special "leaflet raid."—Editor's note.

BERLIN, Feb. 6 (AP)—Authorized German sources asserted today that utterances such as that by Wendell L. Willkie released yesterday in London should be received with contempt.

"Of one thing we are sure," they said. "Willkie would not have made this reference to his German extraction before election."

Actually, Willkie made a full statement concerning his German ancestry in his acceptance speech at Elwood, Ind., last July.—Editor's note.

It was asserted that Willkie had behaved more English than American—"The British lords so impressed him."

'Tis News When Landlord Skips Out on Boarders

MACON, Ga., Feb. 6 (AP)—Reversing the old story, a Macon landlord skipped out on his tenants.

Several workmen from a nearby army project, Camp Wheeler, checked in and planked down $18 each for two weeks in advance, Deputy Sheriff J. C. Calhoun related.

Returning from work next day, the tenants told the deputy, they found the house bare of the last stick of furniture, landlord and landlady gone.

9 HURT IN 4-CAR CRASH

SOUTHINGTON, Ct., Feb. 6 (INS)—Nine persons were injured today when four automobiles were involved in a head-on collision on Stillman's Hill. None of the victims was seriously injured.

Dog Guards Strangled Baby

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (AP)—Dancing till dawn is Jackie Steers' chore as a Brooklyn night club entertainer.

Demonstrating his skill as a drummer in cabarets is the only way her husband, Kenneth, can hope to get a job.

While out, they would leave their giant police dog, Daisy Mae, to watch over 13-months-old Kenneth, Jr.

When they returned to their $10-a-week basement apartment yesterday, they found Daisy Mae whining softly near the crib where the baby sad caught his neck in the bars and strangled to death.

Fred Perkins, War Hero, Writer, Dies

Frederic Parker Perkins, decorated World War veteran and member of the editorial staff of the Boston Evening American, died suddenly today at City Hospital a short time after being admitted for treatment for a heart condition.

For 20 years he had been a well-known newspaperman in New Hampshire and in Boston.

At various times he had been on the staffs of the Concord (N. H.) Monitor, Manchester (N. H.) Union-Leader, the Boston Post and Boston Herald, but for a number of years past had been a feature writer and rewrite man for the Record-American-Advertiser.

GIVEN HERO HONORS

A native of Manchester, N. H., he was born Oct. 13, 1897, the son of the late Atty. and Mrs. David W. Perkins. An uncle was the late Dr. Frederic Perkins, also of Manchester.

Perkins prepared at Manchester High School for college and entered Harvard in 1916 with the class of 1920.

He barely finished his freshman year, however, before joining the American Ambulance Field Service, in which he drove an ambulance with the French Army.

During this service he was injured by a shell burst and on Sept. 3, 1917, only a few months after enlisting in the ambulance service, he was awarded the Croix de Guerre for heroism under fire.

Later he transferred to the American fighting forces overseas, and served throughout with Headquarters Co., 77th Field Artillery, 4th Division, eventually going with that outfit into Germany in the Army of Occupation.

While with the 77th F. A. he took part in all the major American engagements on the western front.

HIS WORDS OF WISDOM

For the Harvard class of 1920 "Vicennial Report," he wrote of his career after the war:

"After a futile try at making the world safe for democracy in 1917, 1918 and 1919 with the French Army, American Expeditionary Force, and the Army of Occupation, I grabbed a newspaper job with no higher immediate aim than to keep myself in bread and butter.

"Yet now, after 20 years of writing 'em as I see 'em, I'm an earnest convert to the belief that the United States press, however prejudiced or controlled or mistaken or venal or clumsy in occasional instances, is nevertheless a greater safeguard of American free government than the Army, Navy, Congress, Dies committee, or all of us guys who fought and bled and sang 'Mademoiselle from Armentieres' a couple of decades ago."

On Jan. 1, 1923, he married Frances Lucile Barry at Manchester. She survives him. Also surviving are an aunt, Mrs. William S. (Hope) Plummer of Elm st., Manchester, and an uncle, William Parker of Glen Ridge, N. J.

Thousands With Weak Kidneys Now Sleep Sounder All Night

Gain in Health by Flushing Excess Poisons Out Through Kidneys——Easing Bladder Irritation, That Causes You to Get Up Nights.

Thousands of men and women wonder why sleeplessness bothers them—why they have to visit the bathroom often at night—why they wake up tired, grouchy and drawn.

These symptoms may mean that your kidneys are sluggish, causing bladder irritation and these minor symptoms may become more serious if neglected.

To flush out excess waste poisons and acid from kidneys, soothe your irritated bladder and put more activity into your kidneys, get a 35-cent package of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules and take as directed.

This tried and true medicine should make you feel better in a few days—it's an effective diuretic and kidney stimulant that relieves the pains caused by gouty phases of sciatica, neuritis and rheumatic joint agony when irritated by excess uric acid.

Don't be an easy mark and accept a substitute—ask for Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules. Get Gold Medal—the original—the genuine. Look for the Gold Medal on the box—35 cents.—Adv.

ASHLEY, MAYOR 23 TERMS, DIES

NEW BEDFORD, Feb. 6—Charles Sumner Ashley, this city's "permanent mayor," died here today of a heart attack at the age of 82.

In 1921 Ashley announced his retirement from public life after having been New Bedford's chief executive for 22 terms, but in 1926 while he was recuperating from an operation his friends elected him on stickers.

He was informed of his election for the 23rd time as he lay on a bed in a Boston hospital.

Mr. Ashley was born in New Bedford Sept. 5, 1858; was graduated from grammar school here and attended the Friends Academy, then went to work at the age of 17.

He served in the Common Council and as alderman, and was twice defeated for mayor before his first election in 1890. Almost without interruption he served as mayor until his retirement.

He was postmaster of New Bedford and later became a member of the school committee. He was a member of many Masonic lodges and had innumerable friends.

EX-CONG. WASON DIES

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 6 (AP)—Edward H. Wason, 75, congressman from New Hampshire's Second District from 1915 to 1931, died today at his home.

Antonescu Orders New Death Penalties

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Feb. 6 (AP)—(Passed by Military Censor)—The most severe criminal code in modern Rumanian history was announced today by Premier Gen. Ion Antonescu, providing such penalties as death for drawing anti-government cartoons and five to 15 years at hard labor for singing political songs in the streets.

The code also establishes the death penalty for misappropriation of more than $4000 in public funds and one to five years' imprisonment for parents whose children are convicted of crimes. Penalties equal to those for adults are provided for children over 15.

The prison terms are doubled for Jews, Communists and those of non-Rumanian ethnic origin.

More than 20 crimes are punishable by death within 10 hours after sentence. Among them are promising to redistribute fortunes or to end taxation and engaging in any class struggle.

The special punishment for Communists was the first in Rumanian history.

While saying he was "not a tyrant" and does not wish to "spill blood," Antonescu declared future revolts must be forestalled so that order can be re-established immediately "for us and our allies."

Most of the laws were aimed at rebellious activity and against revival of outlawed secret organizations, including the Iron Guard.

Penalties include death for anyone who is found with arms and explosives, who engages in or encourages demonstrations, who fires on soldiers, state authorities or public buildings, who prints or even writes anti-government articles, who attempts to take the life of the King or any member of the royal family, who foments army rebellion, wears the army uniform illegally, fails to inform the government of plots or sabotage, spreads false news or allows a sniper to shoot from his windows.

Ships Damaged By Nazi Bombers

BERLIN, Feb. 6 (AP)—German warplanes sank one 3000-ton merchant vessel and damaged two others in attacks on British sea lanes yesterday, the Nazi high command reported today.

Two of the ships—including the one sunk—were reported attacked off the mouth of the Thames. The other was bombed about 280 miles west of Ireland, "incapacitated and stopped motionless," a communique declared.

The Nazi air force directed its overnight attacks, the high command said, on "war vital objectives" in southeast England, starting "numerous" fires in harbor facilities of one coastal town.

British War Bill 42 Million Day

LONDON, Feb. 6 (AP)—Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, told Commons today the war is now costing Britain £10,500,000 (about $42,000,000) every day, or more than double the daily expenditures of a year ago.

He made the statement in asking for another lump sum appropriation of £600,000,000 (about $2,400,000,000) for the rest of this year and £1,000,000,000 ($4,000,000,000) to start the fiscal period beginning April 1.

Details as to how the money is being used are kept secret.

French Void Donovan's Syrian Visa

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 6 (AP)—A reliable informant said today the French embassy in Ankara acting on last-minute instructions from Vichy cancelled a visa permitting Col. William J. Donovan unofficial United States observer to travel through Syria en route to Palestine and Egypt.

Shortly before Donovan's train left Ankara Monday night, the informant said a French embassy official arrived at the station and instructed Vichy had cabled that under no circumstances should Donovan be permitted to travel through Syria, which is under French mandate.

(Donovan arrived in Jerusalem today, having flown there by way of the British island of Cyprus.—Editor's Note.)

Donovan and his party hastily changed plans and went by train to Adana, in southern Turkey, and from there were flown to Palestine by Lord Forbes, assistant British air attache at Athens, who piloted Donovan from Greece to Turkey.

They avoided Syrian territory.

Refusal of the visa appeared to be a new departure by the French authorities, who in recent months have granted numerous visas to Americans in Turkey.

Donovan was accompanied by Comdr. Richard Tuggle, U. S. Naval attache in Turkey, and British Col. Sykes.

Turkish newspapers credited Donovan's Balkan tour with bolstering Bulgarian and Yugoslav resistance to Axis pressure by bringing assurances that President Roosevelt is determined to give Britain all possible aid.

Army Lets Cook Off for Day to Sing at Bridal

BALTIMORE, Feb. 6 (AP)—By special permission, Pvt. Wilmer O'Brien—in private life a tenor but now a cook in the newly-mobilized 104th observation squadron—will sing at Miss Virginia Ardelle Maggio's wedding Feb. 17.

Maj. Charles A. Masson quickly acceded when Miss Maggio, 21, wrote she had counted on O'Brien's singing, adding:

"I realize that were this a time of war, his place would be in the line of duty; but since this is still a comparatively peaceful season, I seek your lenience and generosity . . ."

British Troops Close In on Eritrea Base

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 6 (AP)—British forces in Africa are closing in on Cheren, important railroad town in Italy's Eritrea, British headquarters announced today.

In northern Africa the advance of the Army of the Nile on Bengasi, Libya, "progresses satisfactorily," a communique said.

Cheren lies about 40 miles northeast of Agordat, which the British captured last Saturday, and is about half way on the railroad line between Agordat and Massau, Eritrea's principal Red sea port.

The Italian positions about Cheren are believed to be strongly fortified, and the country is wild and rugged, making motorized advances difficult.

Farther south in Eritrea, the British said, the Fascist forces which had withdrawn eastward from Barentu were vigorously pressed in hte Tole area.

WITHIN 48 HOURS

The British pace in North Africa was expected to bring them to the gates of Bengasi in about 48 hours.

Since the begining of the east African campaign, the communique said:

"About 1500 prisoners, mostly Italians, have been taken with further captures of military material of all descriptions."

The British are making "good progress" in their advance along the Gondar road in Ethiopia, the communique declared, in spite of numerous minefields left by the retreating Italians.

BENGASI RAIDED

Royal Air Force headquarters announced that bombers had raided Benina (Bengasi's airport) and the town of Berka on the night of Feb. 4-5.

Pilots of Royal Air Force bombers, blasting a path for the British advance, told of seeing Italian trucks rolling southward out of Bengasi along the coastal road which offers the only overland line of retreat from the town.

There was no indication of the magnitude of this movement, but east of Bengasi the Italians were reported in full retreat toward the town with the British at their heels.

Panic-stricken Italian settlers were said in British reports to be tangled with columns of Blackshirt troops falling back upon Bengasi.

New Jap Ambassador Reaches San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb 6 (AP)—Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, new ambassador from Japan to the United States, arrived today aboard the NYK liner, Kamakkura Maur, which steamed into the Golden Gate escorted by two U. S. Naval destroyers. He will leave for Washington Saturday.

RAF, NAZI RAIDS HIT NEW FURY

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Feb. 6 (INS)—German bombers returned to the attack today with widespread raids involving at least four areas in England.

Nazi planes were reported over the eastern midlands, East Anglia, and two northeast English coast towns.

German raiders bombed southeast England and the London area during the night in retaliation for savage British attacks from Calais to Boulogne, but the Air Ministry announced today that the Nazis had inflicted relatively slight damage.

Anglo-German aerial warfare leaped to new fury with tremendous RAF raids that covered the French coast from Calais to Boulogne with huge red glares from bomb-kindled fires.

The latest British attacks were described as the most damaging daylight assaults yet inflicted upon the German bases and invasion port along the coast.

Above Calais, Boulogne and Bordeaux the fires sent up pillars of flame and smoke as high as 9000 feet after the British attacks, which precipitated furious aerial combats over the English Channel.

NEW HOSPITAL TRUSTEE

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Robert P. Barry, director of the Catholic Charitable Bureau in Massachusetts, today began new duties as a trustee of Massachusetts General Hospital. He was named by Gov. Saltonstall to succeed Charles J. Dunn of Boston.

Duce Believed Seeking Peace

LONDON, Feb. 6 (INS)—Unofficial British sources hinted that any peace overtures received direct from Premier Mussolini—especially if designed to save the white civilian populace of Italian East Africa from disaster—would be received sympathetically.

This statement was the result of reports that Count Giuseppe Volpi, former Italian finance minister who has spent the last week in Vichy, is en route to London primarily to discuss the fate of Italian settlers in Ethiopia.

This is another in a series of letters from Britons to friends or relatives in Boston.

From: Mr. Jack Cook, Cardiff, England.

My Dear Niece:

Your Aunt has asked me to write you as she has been unwell for some time, and is now in hospital for treatment. There is nothing seriously wrong with her now, although she has been in rather a bad way.

I should imagine your dear aunt had been worrying very much for a long time about the war conditions and had reached a low state of health and then caught a severe chill in her back, as she has had inflammation of the kidneys and bladder—a very painful business with a high temperature. She has, however, turned the corner of recovery and is daily showing some improvement, although I think a slight operation will be necessary before she is able to return home to us.

It is a case of life or death here daily and we live just day by day or even hour by hour in this good old country of ours. At the same time, you need not worry about that. We are all very used to it and it is astonishing how well used one can get to conditions that are so scaring at first. Of one thing we are sure and that is the final result and you can definitely take it for granted that England has been and will be on this occasion supreme in the great test. I have an idea that the day is not far distant when some of our boys will be on German soil again—putting paid to an account of some magnitude.

Now, my dear, I am sorry I can give you no news of Arthur. It is a long time since we have heard from him, but it does not follow that the family has been wiped out. I don't think I should worry just now, dearie, because there are quite a number of towns where it has been necessary to make evacuation, and it is quite possible they will turn up alright, although you will perhaps have heard that his home city has had several bad raids. Just have faith, my dear, as we do have, that our great Creator is watching it all. He still holds the greatest weapon of all with which to strike, and has millions of angels; besides, "five shall chase an hundred, and an hundred, five thousand to destruction."

We just go to bed now, while they pass over with their destructive machines night after night, and if we are called to the next world, then perhaps we shall be able to fight better there.

Our son, Ernest, in the RAF is just home on leave and is looking much better than the last occasion when he was home. He was in hospital for some time after a severe shaking up, when he was badly injured about the head by a bomb dropped, and bruised about the body. However, although he has lost the sight of one eye (the nerves being severed) and the sight of the other one is impaired, he suffers no disfigurement, and thanks be to God, he is still alive and able to carry on in the RAF. He returns to his base on Friday.

We had two "screamers" pass over our house a short while ago. We were all in bed at the time, and it gives one a queer sort of feeling at the time. Luckily, however, they landed in a field at the end of our garden. We just thank God each hour for our preservation, and I think, my dear, you and your friends could keep in the same way very considerably. God does not like to be forgotten or neglected for too long, and if only a whole nation would be of the same mind, the war would not last very long.

Your affectionate uncle,

Jack.

GREEKS HALT THRUST AT TEPELENI

ATHENS, Feb. 6 (AP)—An Italian attack yesterday in the Tepeleni sector of Albania, in which tanks were said to have led the way for shock troops in armored cars, was reported today by the Greeks to have been shattered, putting the Italians again on the defensive.

Dispatches from the front said that anti-tank fire destroyed four of the armored cars and "many" tanks and that the assault troops, routed by a Greek bayonet charge, threw down hand grenades and other weapons as they fled.

The counter assault was launched the moment the column halted for the motorized troops to go into action. The crews of four armored cars were taken prisoners, it was said.

The attack was made in darkness but the surprise element was lacking, the Greek dispatches said.

The Italians were reported hastily entrenching at some points of the front and here and there Greek advance units were so close it was said, that they could hear their foes at work.

The Albanian port of Valona once one of the busiest [illegible] Italian supply chain to Albania has been so badly battered by repeated bombings that the Italians have given it up as a base port, Greeks reported today.

The Greeks quoted Italian prisoners as saying the Fascists have been forced to unload supplies at Kronero, a small town south of Valona on the bay of Valona.

The Greek spokesman reported fresh advances by Greek soldiers in Albania, despite "very unfavorable weather conditions," and the Greeks have captured [illegible] reported that Italian attempts to attack with tanks were [illegible].

new fighting planes being built here.

"Almost all of the equipment and almost all of the new planes that are being built in the United States are going abroad," he said.

"Well," Conally interposed, "a large part—"

"I should say a great majority of it," Lindbergh interrupted.

TELLS OF REPEAL INJURY

Connally said he could not see why these planes would be needed here if it were true, as Lindbergh believed, that there was no danger of an invasion of the United States.

Lindbergh declared in his 'stop-encouraging-war' testimony that repeal of the arms embargo had "done more damage" to France than if the act had been left on the statute books.

"In the end," he said, "it may be shown to have done more damage to Britain. "If France and Britain had not expected repeal of the embargo, I do not believe the war would have started when it did."

"You don't believe Germany would have invaded France?" Connally asked.

"After all," the witness replied, "Britain and France declared war on Germany. I believe that if war had not been declared Germany would not have turned west. I believe that if we had kept the arms embargo, peace would be under negotiation in Europe now."

"BETTER PEACE NOW"

Lindbergh asserted that "from the standpoint of Britain and France, I believe a better peace could be negotiated now than next month or next year."

Under further questioning, he said he did not know whether Britain could be invaded.

"It would be extremely costly," he said.

Sen. Thomas (D.) of Utah asked Lindbergh to explain how he thought the United States had "contributed to the downfall of France."

"If they had not expected us to enter the war, they would not have declared war at the time," Lindbergh said, folding his arms on the desk in front of him and leaning forward. "If they had not expected aid and eventually troops from us, they would not have declared war at a very disadvantageous time, when they needed more time to prepare."

Connally asked whether American government representatives in Europe had fostered a French expectancy of United States help and Lindbergh replied he thought United States diplomats had given "indirect encouragement."

HAS NO PROOF

?? The attitude of American newspapers also caused this belief to spread, he said, adding that the general attitude of the press since the outbreak of the war had spurred Britain to continue fighting.

"That's your opinion," connally said. "Do you have any proof that our diplomats encouraged war?"

"No," the witness answered.

Lindberg told the committee at time of the Munich pact, France did not have a pursuit plane which could "catch" any of the German bombers which at time were in mass production.

Sen. Pepper (D.), of Florida, who once called Lindbergh "chief of the fifth columnists," tok up the questioning. He remarked that he was an admirer of Lindberg's and said that his questions would not be personal but would be designed "to make the sources of your convictions thoroughly apparent to the American people."

"Now, Colonel," Pepper continued, "when did you first go to Europe?"

TELLS OF DECORATION

Lindbergh drew a storm of laughter and applause when he responded: "In 1927, sir." It was that year that he flew to Paris.

Chairman George (D.), of Georgia, rapped repeatedly for order.

In response to Pepper's questions, Lindbergh detailed his later trips to Europe and Pepper asked him about the decoration given him by German Field Marshal Goering.

Lindbergh said that on one of his trips to Germany, between 1935 and 1939, he was invited to the American embassy "for the purpose of having to create closer relations between the embassy and the German government."

"When I was there and Goering arrived," he continued, "he handed me this decoration. It was the German eagle. Gen. Goering simply handed me the box containing it. He said, through a translator, that he was giving me the Order of the German Eagle."

"You retained it?" Pepper asked.

"Yes, I still have it in storage."

"When was the last time you saw Goering?"

"In October, 1933. It was at a scientific meeting. I was in Germany in January, 1939, but I did not see him, although I saw other officers of the air force."

NO HINT BY GOERING

"When you saw him in 1938—that was after Munich—did Goering indicate any policy of his government toward what we call aggression? Did he indicate that they would seize Czechoslovakia?"

"Not to me. Our talks were primarily technical. I do not remember his ever saying anything to me about what hteir purposes were, but I think they were perfectly obvious."

The flier asserted that it was an "established fact" that the countrys air force was in deplorable condition, its army "but poorly equipped," and its battle fleet "in urgent need of new equipment."

"I oppose placing our security in an English victory," he asserted, "because I believe that such a victory is extremely doubtful.

"I am opposed to this bill because I believe it endorses a policy that will lead to failure in war and to conditions in our own country as bad or worse than those we now desire to overthrow in Nazi Germany."

Lindbergh called Germany the natural airpower of Europe," and said it was obvious England could not reach Germany's air strength without great assistance from the United States.

Regardless of assistance, Lindbergh said he did not believe American and British air forces could fight from the small area of the British isles on equal terms with the Luftwaffe that had "unlimited bases" on the continent.

"We would have a disadvantageous geographical position, from which to fight, and an ocean to cross with aircraft, men, fuel and supplies, while our ships would be constantly subjected to the bombs and torpedoes of our enemy," he said.

DOUBTS BRITISH VICTORY

Observing that the "policy of depleting our own forces to aid England is based upon the assumption that England will win this war," Lindbergh said he did not believe Great Britain could win, or at least not until years of war and an invasion of the continent of Europe.

"If we deplete our forces further, as this bill indicates we may, and if England should lose this war, then, gentlemen, I think we may be in danger of invasion, although I do not believe that we are today.

"If we ever are invaded in America, the responsibility will lie upon those who send our arms abroad."

McCormick testified he favored occupying British and French island possessions "by force" if that were necessary to prevent Germany from using them as bases for an attack on the United States.

McCormick, however, said he did not wish to express an opinion on the legislation itself.

WOULDN'T LET BASES FALL

Senator Pepper asked:

"Suppose Germany should conquer Great Britain and take over British bases on this hemisphere?"

"I wouldn't let them do it," McCormick replied.

To prevent such a step, McCormick declared, he would seek first to acquire the island possessions in advance but that if this were impossible he would occupy, then "by force."

"What do you think the effect would be on Hitler" Pepper asked.

"I couldn't tell you," McCormick answered. "I am not interested in that."

Pepper asked what McCormick would do if if "Hitler sought to take over the Azores."

"I'd get there first," the witness answered.

In saying it was "fantastic" to suggest an invasion McCormick mentioned formidable distances, transportation difficulties, and other barriers for any would-be invader.

NOT SCARED OF HITLER

Pepper asked McCormick whether he favored the policy of "sending our navy there first" if American security were threatened in any part of the world, and the witness agreed.

"Suppose Hitler declared war on us?" Pepper observed.

"Then we'll be in for a fight," McCormick replied, adding: "These Germans aren't so tough, Senator. I've been up against them, and I'm not scared of them."

He testified he spent 16 months overseas as a staff and field artillery officer in the last war.

When Pepper said he thought the Nazis might obtain control of the seas if they captured the British fleet, McCormick said he did not believe the combined British, Italian and German fleets were "bigger than ours."

"We don't know how many ships of those fleets are still floating," he said. "The Italian force is mostly on the bottom."

"You mean all those the British have been able to catch," Pepper supplied, adding humorously: "Have you heard that Mussolini promises Hitler all ald 'short of war?'"

"WON'T CONQUER BRITAIN!"

"The Italians have a new secret weapon—the German army," McCormick replied in like mood.

McCormick said in response to further questions he would like "to have the Azores right away."

Pepper then suggested that Germany might "conquer Britain and put a Laval in Churchill's place."

"They are not going to conquer Britain," the witness responded.

McCormick said he favored selling Britain anything she needs for defense "but I don't believe they need anything."

Discussing invasion possibilities, McCormick said that for an attack across the south Atlantic, a German army would have to travel 4300 miles—most of it over difficult terrain—to reach a jumping off position at Dakar.

In the Pacific he cited the long distances, strong bases and the presence of the battle fleet.

"Even if we did not have these overwhelming strategical advantages, this panic over possible German attack would not be justified," he commented.

Student 'Vivas' For Duce, Hitler

ROME, Feb. 6 (AP)—A crowd of students bearing Italian and German flags marched toward the United States embassy this afternoon shouting "down with democracy." They were turned off down a side street and did not pass the embassy itself.

Reports circulated afterward said some of the demonstrators had shouted against the United States, but members of the crowd told Americans they were demonstrating against Britain, not America.

Stefani, the official news agency, said the students were reacting to British radio reports of disorders in Rome.

Shouting vivas for Pemier Mussolini, Adof Hitler and King Vittorio Ecanuele, the students began the march at the tomb of the Italian unknown soldier, where they had gathered to render homage.

There was no strong reinforcement of guards around the embassy, as was placed in front of the United States consulate in Turin during similar demonstrations there last week.

TEXT OF LINDBERGH BLAST AT BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—The text of the statement prepared by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh for his appearance today before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, considering the British aid bill, follows:

In the hope that it will save time and add to clarity, I have attempted to outline briefly my reasons for opposition to this bill. In general, I have two.

I oppose it, first, because I believe it is a step away from the system of government in which most of us in this country believe. Secondly, I oppose it because I think it represents a policy which will weaken, rather than strengthen, our nation.

The first point is simply my opinion as an American citizen. The second is closely connected with the development of aviation as a factor in modern warfare.

U. S. CANT CONTROL WAR

It is this second point, if you will permit me, that I would like to discuss. I shall have to speak with the utmost frankness in order to make my position clear. If my discusion seems materialistic, it is because war is materialistic, and must be met, at least for the moment, with material measures. No one deplores this fact more than I. Possibly if our outlook had been more spiritual during the years of peace, it would not have to be so material today.

And here I would like to say that I have never taken the stand that it makes no difference to us who wins this war in Europe. It does make a difference to us, a great difference. But I do not believe that it is either possible or desirable for us in America to control the outcome of European wars.

When I am asked which side I would like to have win, it would be very easy for me to say "the English." But, gentlemen, an English victory, if it were possible at all, would necessitate years of war and an invasion of the continent of Europe.

SAYS BRITAIN CANT WIN

I believe this would create prostration, famine, and disease in Europe—and probably in America—such as the whole world has never experienced before. This is why I say that I prefer a negotiated peace to a complete victory by either side.

This bill is obviously the most recent step in a policy which attempts to obtain security for America by controlling internal conditions in Europe. The policy of depleting our own forces to aid England is based upon the assumption that England will win this war.

Personally, I do not believe that England is in a position to win the war. If she does not win, or unless our aid is used in negotiating a better peace than could otherwise be obtained, we will be responsible for futilely prolonging the war and adding to the bloodshed and devastation in Europe, particularly among the democracies.

In that case, the only advantage we can gain by our action lies in whatever additional time we obtain to prepare ourselves for defense. But instead of consolidating our own defensive position in America, we are sending a large portion of our armament production abroad.

DEPLORABLE AIR FORCE

In the case of aviation, for instance, we have sent most of it, yet our own air forces are in deplorable condition for lack of modern equipment. The majority of the planes we now have are obsolescent on the standards of modern warfare.

This bill even authorizes the transfer of the equipment that our air forces now possess. From the standpoint of aviation, at least, I believe this policy weakens our security in America. In order to make this point clear, I would like to touch briefly upon the aviation situation in Europe.

During the study I made of European aviation in 1936, 1937, and 1938, I was forced to the conclusion that Germany was the natural air power of Europe, just as England is the natural sea power. I based this conclusion upon a combination of factors including geographical and meteorological conditions; national psychology; ability in the design, manufacture, and operation of aircraft; and upon a comparison of existing European air forces and manufacturing facilities.

NEGLECTED WARPLANES

I concluded that the United States was the only nation in the world capable of equalling or excelling Germany in aviation. But since we in America had specialized in commercial aviation, and neglected military aviation, it was obvious to me that Germany had a lead in military aviation which could not be overcome in less than several years. I believe the campaigns and developments of the war have borne out these conclusions.

At the present moment, Germany controls air bases on the continent of Europe which extend almost in a semi-circle around the British Isles. From these bases she can converge upon the relatively centralized industry and aviation establishments of England. This fact alone gives the German air force great advantage.

Even if the British and German air forces were equal in strength, Germany would have the advantage geographically. Her air bases are now much closer to the English objectives than the English air bases are to the German objectives.

SEES U. S. AID FUTILE

The German bomber can carry extra bombs while the English bomber must carry extra fuel. And the Germans have longer warning of an attack than the English have because of the greater distances that must be flown over the continent before important objectives can be reached.

In support of these facts, I cite the case with which London can be bombed, in comparison to the difficulty involved in bombing Berlin.

And in addition to Germany's advantage geographically, she has the additional asset of a much stronger air force and far greater aircraft manufacturing facilities than exist in England.

In view of these factors alone, I believe it is obvious England cannot obtain an air superiority equal to Germany's without great assistance from the United States. And my personal opinion is that, regardless of how much assistance we send, it will not be possible for American and British aviation, concentrated in the small area of the British Isles, to equal the full strength of German aviation, with unlimited bases throughout the continent of Europe.

CHARLES A. LINDBERGH

SAYS AID WEAKENS U. S.

We would have a disadvantageous geographical position from which to fight, and an ocean to cross with aircraft, men, fuel and supplies, while our ships would be constantly subjected to the bombs and torpedoes of our enemy.

With this picture of Europe in mind, I now return to my statement that, from the standpoint of aviation, the attempt to gain supremacy of the air in Europe weakens our security in America. If we follow the policy represented by this bill, we will find ourselves with England as a bridgehead in Europe, and, one might say, with the American neck stretched clear across the Atlantic ocean.

If we establish such a bridgehead we must make every effort to maintain it. In that, as I say, I do not see how we can be successful.

If England is able to hold out several years, and if we devote our maximum wartime effort to the production of aircraft, we can almost certainly equal or exceed the air strength of Germany. But then we would be confronted with the problem of transporting that air strength to the British Isles.

SUPPLY BIG PROBLEM

In doing this, we would have to rely largely on surface ships. We might be able to fly many of our aircraft to England, but the fuel and supplies to maintain them would have to go by sea. This we would place ourselves in the position of having our aviation in England dependent upon sea lines within easy bombing range of the enemy's aircraft.

It is also essential to take into consideration the fact that we have another island bridgehead in the Philippines; so that if we follow out the policy represented by this bill, we will have to maintain and protect supply lines which stretch two-thirds of the way around the earth, and which end in positions exposed to attack by the most powerful nations of both Europe and Asia.

This would be an audacious undertaking even if our nation were fully prepared for war. But we are not prepared for war, and the attempt to hold control of island positions off the coasts of Europe and Asia, at the same time, would necessitate depleting even the small defense forces that we now have, as the terms of this bill clearly show.

DANGER OF INVASION

What we are doing in following our present policy, is giving up a ideal defen position in America for a very precarious offensive position in Europe. I would be opposed to our entering the internecine wars of Europe under any circumstances.

But it is an established fact today, that our army and our air force are but poorly equipped by modern standards, and even our Navy is in urgent need of new equipment.

If we deplete our forces still further, as this bill indicates we may, and if England should lose this war, then, gentlemen, I think we may be in danger of invasion although I do not believe we are today.

If we ever are invaded in America, the responsibility will be upon those who send our arms abroad.

I advocate building strength in America because I believe we can be successful in this hemisphere. I oppose placing our security in an English victory because I believe that such a victory is extremely doubtful.

DANGER HERE IN U. S.

I am opposed to this bill because I believe it endorses a policy that will lead to failure in war, and to conditions in our own country as bad or worse than those we now desire to overthrow in Nazi Germany.

I do not believe that the danger to America lies in an invasion from abroad.

I believe it lies here at home in our own midst, and that it is exemplified by the terms of this bill the placing of our security in the success of foreign armies, and the removal of power from the representatives of the people in our own land.

CANADA'S AIRFORCE OPEN TO U. S. YOUTHS

all categories in a constant "feeding stream" to offset the utmost in Nazi air might.

2—To provide a giant machine which will meet the high volume air needs of the Empire.

3—To give Canada a post-war, transcontinental air system which will equal or exceed that in any other country.

What happens to the average American who volunteers for the Canadian airforce is what happened to Steve Murray, an Anderson, Ind., second year student at the State University who, he says, was lured by the prospect of high adventure and the thrill of seeing human history's most dramatic moments in the making.

There was no impelling idealism he said, although he believed that Britain's cause was just. But, essentially and primarily, he was intrigued by what the magazine authors call "knight errantry of the skies" and the thought of soaring around, bird-like, in the epic adventure of the age.

So Steve did the direct thing: He wangled parental permission, paid his way to Toronto, located the King st. air recruiting office and offered his credentials—birth certificate, two letters of recommendation, etc.

And presently he was being examined by an air force doctor given a "denatured" oath, which eliminated the section concerning allegiance to King and Empire, and was dispatched with a truckload of fellow recruits to the big Manning depot at the Toronto Fair Grounds. In the space of an hour he was in the RCAF.

Steve said it was bewildering at first—the vast expanse of military grounds, converted exhibition halls and squirming bee-hive of soldiery. A sergeant chaperoned him to the quartermaster stores, where he drew his uniform and gear; to the medical center where he was inoculated against contagious disease; to the big central building, like a train shed, where he was assigned to a double bunk and taught the compact arts of folding the blankets and storing his duffle.

He had his queasy moments, he said, until he found a kindred something among these 5000, carefully hand-culled boys in their middle 'teens who had come from everywhither in the British Commonwealth and the two Americas.

So he learned to rise at the brass summons of a bugle while the moon was still in the morning sky, to click his steel-shod heels smartly and snap salutes with a flat outward wave of the palm, to perform fatigue chores with broom and shovel, to drown his individualism in close order drills and to submit to the myriad requirements of military discipline.

VARIOUS FIELDS

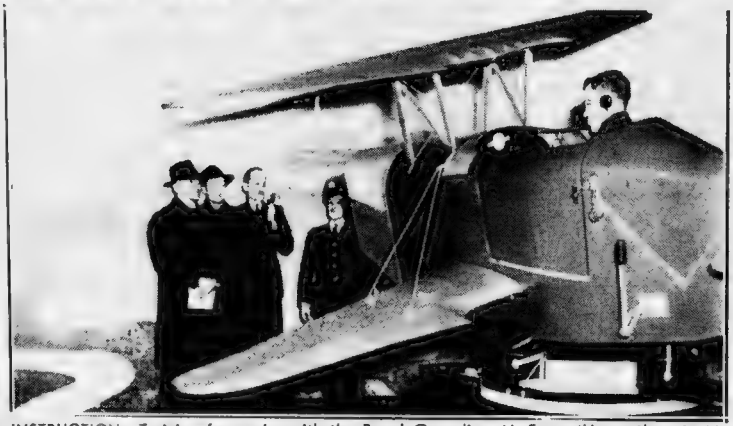
Steve learned that not all the 5000 at the Manning Depot were destined to become fighter and bomber pilots. Some, lacking ability in mathematics or that instant coordination between mind and muscle, would be shunted off to bombing gunnery and wireless schools.

Others, short on aggressiveness but endowed with single purpose and dependability, would win their single-wing-o's and learn to squint through the bomb-sight lenses and find the exact split-second when their target came between the cross hairs and one tripped the trigger of his bomb racks.

Still others of scholarly mind would study the intricate science of astral navigation. Some, with clear vision would go to gunnery schools and find the knack of sitting in the rear-gunner's bucket while pouring stuttering machine gun doses at dancing, never-steady targets.

And some would go to wireless schools and some, less gifted, would become hangar guards, or office clerks or members of the manifold Air Plan ensemble.

So Steve gnawed his cuffs through four weeks of hardening process and wondered when, if ever, his top sergeant would read the morning order, "The following are assigned . ." and hear his own name called. And then one day, he said, it happened! His sergeant swelled his cheeks with wind and announced, ". . . to the No. 1 Initial Training School in Toronto . . . Pvt. Stephen Murray . ." and Steve said that his heart gave a big, internal thump and he felt his muscles tighten under his tunic. He had cleared the first hazard! He hadn't been washed out, yet!



INSTRUCTION—Training for service with the Royal Canadian Air Force, this youth gets his first experience in handling an airplane in the cockpit of a Link trainer at the No. 1 Initial Training School in Toronto. He's following instructions of officer (with microphone) . . . as Austen Lake (left) witnesses.

ATTRACTIVE SPOT

Steve found the initial training school an attractive spot in residential Toronto where the ultra-blue-blood members of the horse-set formerly held their cup and ribbon canters or turned out in scarlet coats for social superciliies.

The big, central clubhouse was turned into a nest of classrooms. The central riding hall was cemented as a drill and recreation hall. The stable stalls where equine aristocracy had once munched their oats was a dormitory billet—steam heated, dry and perfumed with naphtha.

And most fascinating of all was a wing where rows of circular, well-lighted rooms were partitioned off with landscape panoramas painted on the walls and where one sat in little Link trainers and felt the first tingle of handling an anchored airplane.

Steve liked that best he said—sitting in these toy-sized trainers with their stubby, clipped wings, real-life cock-pits and looking over an abbreviated plane nose through a celluloid shield that imitated the blurred whirl of a propeller.

It was quite realistic, he found in these tipsy little craft, which were set on mechanical pedestals with piston arrangements to answer every touch of the controls. A nudge of the stick and you whirled in giddy circles or tipped at alarming angles while you heard the instructions of your officer-tutor through earphones.

BUSY FOUR WEEKS

They were four crowded, energetic weeks, said Steve, in which he and his fellows were given clinical examinations on laboratory instruments which checked the blood flow through the heart, the brain waves and nerve reflexes.

Only boys of plus physical standard were wanted here; lads whose sense would not cloud in rarefied heights, kids who wouldn't go faint in a vertical, 450 MPH power dive, or become dizzy in a tight outside loop, or eye-dazzled in a bright sky.

So Steve took his turn sitting in an airtight, metal turret, like the interior of a Navy diving bell while a medical officer turned off the pressure at little outside throttles and he squatted, sucking oxygen through a rubber tube.

A telephone head-set brought him the voice of an instructor, dictating simple problems as a gauge on his mental alertness, and he could hear his own voice reply, muffled by the rubber face mask.

And always during that month Steve and his 500 classmates knew that their every action was under constant scrutiny; that there was a vital chart standing in the Commandant's office where the record of every cadet was tabled with dozens of marks and symbols ranging from ratings on "mathematics" to "modesty."

Was he trim in appearance? Did he have pleasing personality? Was he sufficiently aggressive? Were his power of perception acute? Was he instinctive at plane controls?

The capacities and potentialities of each cadet were on that chart, delineated by Y's-for-Yes and N's-for-No. It offered, at a glance, a searching analysis of character and capacity and suggested for which of the several air-arms each was fitted.

ITEMS OF FAILURE

Opposite some names there were little red-ink circles drawn around items of failure, little crimson rings which connoted some essential lack and sorted a boy toward one of the more mechanical divisions—this one as an air observer at London, this as a gunnery student at Jarvis, or the wireless school at Montreal.

It was high-powered concentrated scholarship with such problems as:

"An aircraft S-C 349 degrees M; Var 2 degrees W at 1600 hrs from spot B, the A-S being 120 MPM.; W-V equals 070 degrees 16 MPH. At 1630 hrs A-S is increased to 150 MPH and the new W-V is 120 degrees -24 MPH. If the course is maintained, find distance and bearing of aircraft from B at 1710 hrs."

Doesn't sound easy, but Murray said it was easier than it sounds.

Life, Steve found, at "Hunt Club" was closely similar, in social form, to life at any American college; the camaraderie and dormitory gabble, the same relaxations and school pride, the same petty peeves and irritations.

One and all, he said, the boys liked it. They ate good food from a common menu. They went through their drills with a unified click of boots and slap of hands. They welcomed their occasional "leaves" and week-end holidays. And though they accepted the fact that this was preliminary to the grim reality of war, the sinister idea seemed very remote.

And then one morning came the high-pitched, clarion ring of the sergeant's voice, another sergeant, reading the commandant's daily orders:

"The following," chanted the non-com, "are assigned the elementary flying school for first flying instruction . . ."

With an apprehensive dread Murray listened while the names were tolled off slowly with an ominous, almost fierce distinctness. "Roger Mosshart, Eugene Mercedes, John Calhoun . . ." and finally, like a deep gulp of clear, heart stimulating oxygen, he heard, "Stephen Murray."

Flying, the first thrill of live-air quivering under his wings, the exhilaration of the clear, cold heights, open space and the vibrant sense of bird-freedom. All this, said Stephen Murray, rushed through his mind as he packed his gear into a little brown, canvas duffle-sack with its red, white and blue rondel. He was off to be a pilot at last.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste

If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Kidneys may need help the same as bowels; so ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Man, 71, Woman Beaten by Thugs

Trailed and set upon by thugs near their homes, an elderly man and young woman were injured in two separate attacks in Medford today.

Four thugs waited in ambush for Anthony Doll, 71, of 37 Bonner ave., Medford, as he was walking from Main st. to his home. They converged on him and struck him without warning, then stripped him of his valuables.

One of Doll's attackers used a knife to cut the aged victim's left trousers pocket entirely off. The pocket contained $60 in cash. Doll was carrying the money home from the Brunswick bowling alleys, Massachusetts ave., Cambridge, of which he is the proprietor.

Medford police also were told by Mrs. Agnes McLaughlin, 28, that a young man followed her from a street car when she got off at the Fellsway and struck her about the head when she neared her home in Chipman st., Medford.

3 Hub Nurses Aid Britain

Ready and anxious to carry their healing arts to war-torn England, three Boston City Hospital nurses today awaited the call for duty with the first overseas unit of the American Red Cross.

The three, selected with 38 others throughout the nation, are the Misses Dorothy Catherine Morse, 22, of Spring st., Medford; Rachel St. Pierre, 22, of the Franklin Square House in the South End, and Mary A. Sullivan of Fenwood st., Roxbury. All are graduates of the City Hospital nursing school.

The Red Cross has been quietly singling out from hundreds of applicants a group of 65 nurses to staff the American Red Cross-Harvard Hospital to be established "somewhere in England."

Miss Sullivan, a supervisor, is president of the City Hospital Alumni Association.

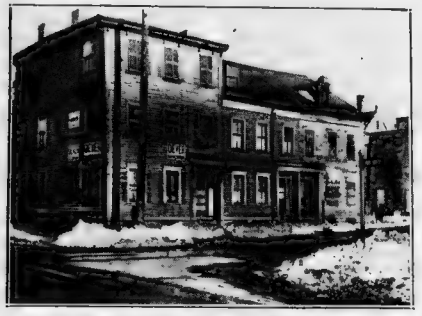
Action Begins at South Boston's New Housing Project Site



B St. at West Sixth . . . A Condemned Area

Quietly, things are beginning to stir at the site of the new federal low cost housing project in the "lower end" of South Boston.

Announcement of the project, sought by South Boston civic groups for almost three years had been made by Mayor Tobin following a conference with Congressman Joh W. McCormack.

The present housing project, now in use will be taken over for defense workers, the Mayor said, under a loan that will yield $42000 interest to the city annually more than the city derived when the area was built with individual homes.

The new project is in an area bounded by West Broadway, B, West Seventh, C, Paxton, and D Sts. and a mostly residential district contains four schools.

Many of the houses in the district have been condemned.

According to John A. Breen, Chairman of the Boston Housing Authority, action has already begun, he says, at the project.

Representatives of the Housing Authority have begun to discuss the plan with property owners in the district and draftsmen have begun a preliminary inspection of the site on which the houses are to be constructed.

And at present relationship the people who live in the present houses have begun to make plans. The families of Rose Dio Mariposta of Carl, all the other families, have begun to look about for other homes for this plan entails a wholesale upheaval of homes.

Within a short while the actual work will begin.

ARMY ORDERS 4,500,000 SPECIAL TAGS FOR IDENTIFYING WAR DEAD AND WOUNDED

UNDER the above headline the New York World-Telegram of Wednesday, January 29, published the following thought-provoking story:

(By Scripps Howard Newspaper Alliance)

"WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—Designed to aid identification of men killed or wounded in battle, 4,500,000 emergency medical tags are to be printed under a contract awarded by the government, it was revealed today.

"To be placed 'over the breast or as near it as possible,' the tags provide space for identification by name, Army unit and rank and request information on types of wounds and treatment.

"Pushed out of the huge government printing office by a flood of other work brought on by the defense program, the contract for the tags, to be in 150,000 booklets of 30 each, was awarded by competitive bidding to the William C. Ballantyne Co., of Washington. They will be distributed through the Army corps areas.

"'Killed in Action' is reduced to KIA and 'Wounded in Action' is cut down to WIA in a detailed list of abbreviations provided for the men who fill out the forms.

"Those engaged in identification work are also told:

"'Full identification of the organization of which the patient is a member is highly important in connection with his military record and is necessary for studies of battle casualties and planning for medical service in combat. Make the record as complete as possible.'

"The Surgeon General's Office said that the current $45,000 order would not be used in one year and that 'even in actual wartime conditions the 150,000 booklets would have little relation to 4,500,000 actual casualties. All units would carry the supplies; many never would use them.'

"Each tag asks for essential facts concerning the disease or injury, description of the wound, causative agent, treatment applied and whether operation is urgently needed.

"In addition to the 150,000 booklets of tags for soldiers, 15,000 booklets are being supplied for the recording of animal casualties, chiefly horses and mules.

"Titled Emergency Medical Tag, the booklets bear the name of the United States Army. Each tag actually consists of two, one linen, to be attached to the casualty, and one paper, providing a duplicate for the records. Each tag has a piece of thin copper wire for convenience in attaching the tag to the war casualty.

"'If the patient dies en route,' the instructions say, 'note here the time and place of death. Note the hospital where the patient was admitted for definite treatment, or the disposition of the body. If the soldier is returned to duty from any station on the route of evacuation prior to admission to hospital, record that fact.'

"Other abbreviations are provided for a variety of wounds, fever, fractures and causes.

"An officer in the Surgeon General's Department asserted that the order did not indicate any preparation for war, explaining that they are desirable for use in field training maneuvers, where actual combat is closely simulated. The supplies are part of complete equipment being provided for the expanding Army, he said, and are also used in cases of actual sickness or injury in such service."

THOUSANDS OF AMERICANS who read this story are going to ask questions—these, surely:

If the lives of American boys are not going to be sacrificed in the European war, as President Roosevelt promised voters during the recent campaign, why "KILLED IN ACTION" tags?

What "action" is contemplated?

Following passage of the Administration-supported "Lease-Lend" Bill will units of the United States Army be "LENT" to bolster the defenses of Britain or USED TO INVADE the European continent?

If there is no immediate need for the tags why could they not be turned out two or three months hence in the government printing office instead of being obtained IMMEDIATELY from a private concern?

Is this haste prompted by a belief that the "Lease-Lend" Bill will plunge the United States into the European war and that labels for the dead ought to be obtained BEFORE THE SHOOTING STARTS?

Does the printing of 4,500,000 tags mean that an Army of that number of men will be raised in the next year or two for service in Europe or Asia.

"WHY are women executives such conceited bores? Why do women in business try to act like men instead of being themselves? Why is it women never seem to have any political opinions of their own but merely repeat the opinions of their husbands and boy friends? Why is it liberty is symbolized by a woman as in the Statue of Liberty? What woman ever wanted to give a man any liberty?" So writes one who signs himself "Bachelor Forever" and concludes his communication: "Women, bah!" This is my first communication from this gentleman so I cannot say whether his opinions are inspired by experience or dyspepsia or both.

ASIDES: During the month before her wedding to the Duke of Windsor, the then Mrs. Wallis Simpson bought 46 hats. That's a lot of hats. But then Gracie Allen is said to have purchased 23 hats in one afternoon. I have two hats and one of them is a very nice hat. How about you, mister? . . . "So you say your dog is a thoroughbred," writes a Baltimore admirer. "Listen, Stupid, dogs are pure-breds, only horses are thoroughbreds" . . . "Come in and Browse," it said on the bookstore sign, so accepted the invitation and did a bit of browsing over a counter of old popular sheet music and noted copies of "To Have, To Hold, To Love," by Ernest R. Ball; "Hitchy-Koo," by L. Wolfe Gilbert; "There's a Little Spark of Love Still Burning," sung by Kitty Gordon in Jack Lait's playlet "Alma's Return"; "April Showers Bring May Flowers," music by Nat and Joe Shilkret; "Teasing," by Albert von Tilzer; "It Ain't Goin' to Rain No More," by Wendell Hall, and "Yip-I-Addy-I-Ay," sung by Blanche Ring in Joe Weber's satire "The Merry Widow and the Devil." Seeing the titles of old songs usually brings many memories, most of them pleasant.

CONFIDENTIAL: Single girls from other cities are said to be invading Detroit in great numbers because of the many single young men with good jobs in the motor city. The invaders are reported to have taken so many matrimonial prizes from the local girls that the latter are thinking of demanding an entrance tax be charged all out of town bachelor girls who come to Detroit with matrimony as their object. The Detroit girls think an entrance tax of $75,000 for brunettes, $100,000 for blondes and $500,000 for natural red-heads would be about right . . . From the classified ads: "Lost. A medium black and white male dog. Partly blind and deaf. Sixteen years old. Answers to the name of Nuggs. Reward, dead or alive." That's loyalty to an old friend for you. I'll bet that family had "Nuggs" since he was a puppy .

-:- MY DAY

NEW YORK CITY, Wednesday—On leaving the very pleasant lunch given by Mrs. Frank Walker yesterday, I went to the Calvary Baptist Church, where an afternoon seminar on the migratory worker was going on under the auspices of the National Christian Mission.

The churches have been working for some time on this problem; and I feel it is a very good thing for all of us, no matter to what special denomination we may belong, to join in work which translates into action the spiritual beliefs we hold.

Over the banisters, as I came out of the church, a little old lady called to me in French. I answered her in her own language, for I think one must have a hunger sometimes, when in a foreign land, to hear other people talk the language of your birth.

From there I went to receive a watch from William C. Ruxton, president of the British-American Ambulance Corps, Inc. A duplicate of the one given to me is being sent to Queen Elizabeth, and these watches with the insignia of the RAF are going to be on sale at local jewelers all over the country for the benefit of this committee.

Here in Washington they are trying to raise $25,000—the first $1000 was handed to Mr. Ruxton today for the purchase of a flying ambulance to pick up aviators shot down at sea.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT HAWKINS of Reno, Nev., arrived to spend last night with us, and we had the usual small dinner preceding the congressional reception. After the reception was over, Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., and I left on the night train for New York.

We breakfasted in my apartment in New York and at 9 o'clock Miss Rose Schneiderman of the Women's Trade Union League joined us there.

We started at once for Greenpoint, Brooklyn, where I had promised to speak for a few minutes to the girls who have been on strike at the Leviton factory for a great many weeks.

WE ARE NOW starting on our drive to Amherst, Mass. Both of us are armed with fur coats and warm clothes, though I confess it seemed impossible to believe in Washington that it could really be cold up here.

We have had a warm winter so far in Washington and I have been able to sleep with both my bedroom windows open.

My bed stands between them, so when the wind blows I sometimes am awakened in the middle of the night by swishing curtains over my face and shades and papers blowing off my night table!

LELA ROGERS GETS MOVIE ROLE

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—In Ginger Rogers' new picture Director Garson Kanin needs some one to play the role of Ginger's mother—some one who looks like Ginger. And so negotiations now are being made for Lela Rogers, Ginger's mother, to play that role in the picture . . . Lela's name once was linked in the columns with that of J. Edgar Hoover. Her friends, Deems Taylor and Harold Ross, discussed this report at a restaurant table, and in tones which were not hushed. They knew Hoover was seated near by. "Why should Lela get herself tied up with a copper?" Taylor asked . . . "I dunno," Ross shrugged. "Just because a flatfoot happens to be handsome . . ." Hoover rose from his table, approached them and said: "I won't raise a finger to help you when you're kidnaped."

ALEXANDER KING, the editor who collaborated with Clare Boothe in a new show about Haiti, returned to that country recently. As soon as he disembarked he went directly to the hotel room he had reserved. On the table he found an envelope addressed to "A. King." Inside was a touching letter: "I am a young widow (??), with one child, and the fates have been most unkind. Yours is a sympathetic face, and I feel that I can unburden my grief to you. With your sympathetic sense I'm sure you will understand and agree to see me, at your convenience. Sincerely." . . . It was a touching note, sure to elicit sympathy. But, except for the salutation, it was all mimeographed."

WILLKIE MAHONEY, who wrote the gags for "Panama Hattie," now is bragging that he even receives fan mail from Greek soldiers. "If you don't believe me," Mahoney declares, "I'll show you the Italian postmark" . . . Mrs. Lyon Boston disrupted the long-distance telephone service when she visited her family in Boston. She told the operator: "This is Mrs. Lyon Boston in Boston. I want to speak to Mr. Boston in New York" . . . Jane Cowl now converses in baby talk. She refers to herself as "Janie-Wanie" and says that her show "opened in Filumdelfium" . . . Anna Louise Strong, who just returned from the Orient, reports that the lines of combat between the Chinese and Japanese are not marked clearly and that postal employes are permitted to pass through the lines and make their deliveries. She reports the case of a man who mailed himself through the lines safely.

PHIL MURRAY, head of the CIO, called his officers to meet and decide upon the question of supporting the lend-lease bill. John L. Lewis asked Murray to postpone it, because of his current illness . . . N. Y. U. at last is recognizing photography as a profession. Its spring courses will offer a "photojournalism" series, with the country's foremost photographers—including Anton Bruehl, Margaret Bourke-White and Ralph Steiner—as lecturers.

THE THEATRE GUILD invited 50 members of the swanky Seventh Regiment, and their ladies, for the performance of "Liberty Jones." The 7th Regiment uniform is one of long tradition. Jefferson Davis saw those uniforms before the Civil War began, and when he was elected to the Presidency of the Confederacy he patterned the uniforms of his entire army after those of the 7th Regiment . . . The 50 socialities wanted to wear their regimental uniforms at the theater, but the U. S. Army now frowns upon such formal dress. And so the disappointed bluebloods, obeying, will feel practically naked in their white-tie-and-tails.

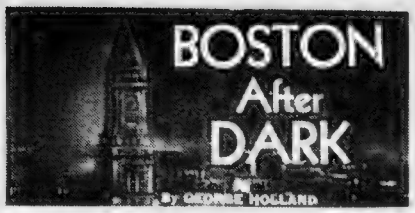
AT THE WHITE HOUSE last week a dinner was given for The Open Road—an organization which sends groups of teachers and social workers on six-week trips to various sections of the country. The President was unable to attend the dinner. Mrs. Roosevelt expressed his regrets and told the guests that he had asked her to relate this story about Theodore Roosevelt: When T. R. was in the White House he once said: "If I could only be President AND Congress for one day!" . . . "What would you do then?" he was asked . . . "I would immediately enact a law," he replied, "compelling each Congressman to visit at least six states before qualifying for office."



OFTEN RUMORED but never actually effected, the overdue policy of an ice revue with skating by the patrons between shows, is about to be undertaken in Boston—by the Copley-Plaza Hotel . . . Eight skating stars have been booked tentatively, and the date set for the opening of Boston's first ice show in a hotel or nightclub is Feb. 24.

THE TOWN SHOULD BE "ice-minded"—the theory is—at that particular time, for the lavish Icecapades of 1941 will have just closed at the Boston Garden. (Although Sonja Henie will not make an appearance this season) . . . The Plaza's dignified Sheraton Room, once the most popular hotel supper-room in town, may be turned over to the ice show.

OR THE MAIN BALLROOM or Swiss Room may first be used to try-out the popularity of the notion . . . The Sheraton Room is ideally constructed for such a plan of entertainment . . . It is fringed by scores of tables, and the tables are only two-deep from the floor . . . Thus it would be easy for patrons on skates to make their way from the inside tables to the floor.

THE HOTEL NEW YORKER'S Terrace Room adopted a policy of revues on skates, with dancing by the patrons on artificial ice—and of course, on skates as well—a year ago . . . That room has been consistently successful . . . A change in policy, if it happens, is not expected to interrupt Stuart Frasier's tenure as maestro of the Sheraton Room.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: The radio announcers used that homey word "mighty" so much in 1940 that we all were mighty tired of the boys' spiels . . . Now they are "you see-ing" their listeners to distraction . . . You see if you can find even a 40-word commercial in which an announcer doesn't say "you see."

FRANK BELLANCA has built a craft which will run away and hide from the mosquito boats . . . Designed to skim along the top of the water, the new Bellanca model has a draft of only 4 inches, and is powered by three engines attached to push-propellers . . . It also carries two torpedoes.

THE STUART-MORGAN dancers will come to the Latin Quarter Sunday, and any youngsters desirous of being adagio dancers can learn that the business of being thrown through the air with the greatest of ease is really an art . . . This troupe gets this corner's vote as the best adagio dancers (there are four of them) in the business today . . . And what, by the way, has happened to Peggy Taylor and Her Kitchen Pirates? . . . Ten years ago, Peggy and her stalwarts were the Stuart-Morgans of the day.

soprano, is the subject . . . It is almost too much to receive from one family, because Yola is a sister of Maria Gambarelli, and "Gamby"—who is working with the Metropolitan Opera—can stand the closest scrutiny without offending the most effete appreciation of beauty.

MISS GALLI IS SINGING some songs she brought home from Brazil, and she is introducing them to North America . . . The name Galli, incidentally, was young Yola's mark of devotion to her big sister . . . The nom de teatre is made of the first two and final three letters of La Gambarelli's name.

DOC WELLMAN, CURLEY MOULTON and Paul Runyon will be among the stars of the Sportsmen's Show appearing at the Cocoanut Grove's "Guest Night" tonight . . . Needabeh, the Indian, will be master of ceremonies, while the show's featured acts are doing their stuff at the Grove.

O'BRIEN PLANS ROLE OF FLOYD GIBBONS

By Loucila O. Parsons

Pat O'Brien

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 6—One of the best reporters that ever lived was Floyd Gibbons, and one of the finest men. I covered many a story with him during my early days in New York. Floyd's life reads like fiction. He lost one eye in the World War and it is characteristic of him that he never let it affect his courage or his work.

Up to the moment of his death he appeared on the radio, talking faster than anyone I ever heard. He also wrote authoritative articles on world affairs.

I can't think of any theme more fitting than to portray a sympathetic story of Gibbons' life such as Pat O'Brien has in mind. Such a story, "The Life of Floyd Gibbons," has been written by Quentin Reynolds and Louis Sobol, two able newspaper men.

Quentin's book, "The Wounded Don't Cry" is one of the most graphic and best descriptions of the present war. Pat is trying to persuade 20th Century-Fox to let him play the character and in view of what he did with "Knute Rockne" it is likely he will succeed.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: The Charles Corelle (Andy, of Amos and Andy) have another date with the stork; Somerset Maugham, noted British author, has checked in the Beverly Hills Hotel;: Johnny Weissmuller, looking very sad and lonely, stagging it at Charlie Foy's night club.

Now it's Al Vanderbilt Virginia Field is seeing these pleasant evenings. Meanwhile George Raft is dating Betty Grable; talk is that Ginny may get herself a contract at Warners; she is a good actress and no matter who she steps out with she still talks about Richard Greene and insists he is the one; Joey Ray and Gwenn Kenyon are keeping the telephones busy.

VIRGINIA FIELD

The Akim Tamiroffs and J. Carroll Naishes are celebrating their joint wedding anniversaries; Janet Gaynor, who is fast becoming Hollywood's smartest dressed woman, at the ballet with her favorite designer, Adrian; Edgar Bergen was with a girl who attracted much attention with red rimmed glasses.

Binnie Barnes is giving the cameramen who voted her the best scout a cocktail party with the stipulation they leave their cameras at home.

FROM A RELIABLE SOURCE I hear that Metro did not take up their option on Katie Hepburn, due thirty days after the release of "Philadelphia Story," in spite of the fact she was such a sensation. The contract contained conditions that were said to be prohibitive.

Katie wanted to set the date when a picture would be made so that she would be entirely free to take a stage engagement if the right one came along. Metro felt that other stars would demand the same privileges.

Garson Kanin, who will probably wed Katie one of these days when she gets around to it, is trying to find a story for her so that he can direct her. Naturally Metro did as much for Katie as she did for them since they gave her a swell production, cast, director and all.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME: When Marlene Dietrich finishes "Flame of New Orleans" she'll say adieu to Universal. There is a deal cooking now between Marlene and Paramount for her to return to the studio where she first started. All of this brings to mind the first time I ever saw Marlene.

I interviewed her in her dressing room just after she had come here from Europe. She was homesick and miserable and finally showed me a picture of Maria, her little girl, for whom she was pining. Interesting to me that a glamour girl talked about her child to the exclusion of everything else. The deal, as I understand it, with Paramount is pretty well set.

GREATLY INTRIGUED with the description sent me by Max Fleischer of "Mr. Bug Goes to Town," the first cartoon to tell a story. Fleischer has spent over a year making these drawings, which are neither fable nor fantasy but the story of a town of insects 45 inches from Broadway who are menaced by steel, cement and the human race.

Fleischer's idea is a radical departure from anything yet done in the cartoon world. Human beings appear only as heavies. An elaborate musical score has been written by Hoagie Carmichael and Frank Lester. The plot is as exciting as any feature movie.

STELLA MILLS looks like this for the optical benefit of the boys out front at the Globe tomorrow.

Stella Mills New Globe Show Star

Lots of fun in the new Globe show, they say. It begins here tomorrow with an unusually beauteous leading lady, Stella Mills.

Miss Mills is described as "a flash across the burlesque orbit," whatever that may mean, though the idea will doubtlessly not be lost on the customers.

The luminous Miss Mills shares the beauty brigade with several other leading lights: Sunny Lovett, from Cuba; Jean Carter, from Havana, and Estelle Montez, from Mexico—each and all rerpesentatives of entertainment in various geographical points.

Among the funny boys in the Globe's new extravaganza are Mr. Pinky Lee, Mr. Bimbo Davis, Harry Ryan and Irving Benson.

There is also a bill of vaudeville specialties and the films, "Straight, Place and Show," with the Ritz Brothers and "Isle of Destiny," with William Gargan and June Lang.

Seats are now selling for the special Washington's Birthday Eve midnight show.

One of the interesting features ending today at the South Station Theater is the showing of the famous William Randolph Hearst art collection.

Many interesting art pieces are shown which make up a total valuation of $50,000,000.

'Submarine D-1' Gayety Feature

Pat O'Brien, George Brent, Wayne Morris and Doris Weston make up the cast of "Submarine D-1," thrilling saga of the United States Navy submarine service, opening on the screen of the Gayety tomorrow, together with "Hell's Kitchen," starring the Dead End Kids, Margaret Lindsay and Ronald Reagan.

"Submarine D-1," as its title indicates, unfolds its action among the underseas craft of Uncle Sam's naval defense. With Pat O'Brien in the role of a hardened chief petty officer and George Brent as commander of the U. S. S. D-1, the picture depicts clashes, both personal and romantic, between O'Brien and Wayne Morris, the latter in the role of a "fresh," irresponsible member of the submarine crew with no particular liking or admiration for the tradition of the sub service.

Morris' heroism, as well as the heroism of O'Brien and Brent, is proved beyond question during the several days the submarine D-1 lies on the ocean floor with seemingly little chance of rescue after being rammed off Block Island by a freighter.

With the co-operation of the United States Navy, many sidelights, as well as the "inside" of the United States submarine service, are shown.

'THIS THING CALLED LOVE' ON LOEW'S SCREENS SATURDAY

'GWTW' Ending Hub Run Friday

The engagement of the thrilling air spectacle, "Flight Command," has been extended for two additional days at Loew's State, concluding its stay tomorrow evening.

Meanwhile "Gone With the Wind," goes into its final two days at Loew's Orpheum.

A riotous new comedy, "This Thing Called Love," opens at both Loew's State and Orpheum on Saturday, starring Rosalind Russell and Melvyn Douglas.

"This Thing Called Love" is described as an uproarious marital comedy in which Rosalind insists upon being the platonic bride of Melvyn Douglas, who loves her madly.

From the opening scene to the final fadeout, "This Thing Called Love" is said to be hilarious, fit successor to Producer Hall's other comedies, "The Doctor Takes a Wife" and "He Stayed for Breakfast," both of which starred Douglas, and more hilarious than "His Girl Friday" and "Hired Wife," both of which starred Miss Russell.

The supporting cast includes Binnie Barnes, Allyn Joslyn, Gloria Dickson, Lee J. Cobb and Gloria Holden.

On the same program is a film of the popular radio series, "Nobody's Children," with Edith Fellows and Billy Lee.

"THIS THING CALLED LOVE," new film comedy at both State and Orpheum beginning Saturday, becomes an acute problem with Melvyn Douglas and Rosalind Russell.

Don Cossack Chorus Concert

The original Don Cossack chorus will come to Symphony Hall on Sunday afternoon for their only Boston concert of the year.

The 34 men under direction of the diminutive Serge Jaroff, have traveled over a million miles to sing in almost every corner of the earth. This is their eleventh American season.

The Don Cossacks will sing folk tunes, Cossack soldier songs, and liturgies dating back a thousand years. The program includes: The Creed, Cherubim Hymn, Blessed Is the Man, Ave Maria, Loud, Have Mercy On Us, Recollections of Tchaikovsky, The Regiment Was Riding, Kama Song, Darling While Hazel Tree, Kuban Song and "At the Smithy," Red Sarafan, Three Russian Folk Songs, Their Arms in the Bright Sunshine Blazing, and the Don Cossack Song.

PLAY SAFE!

Supplement your daily diet during winter months with vitamins and minerals and you have one of the secrets of more abundant health.

IT is said on good authority that virtually nobody receives a supply of vitamins sufficient for living at the highest health level. We get enough of them, perhaps, to ward off rickets, pellagra and beri beri. But defective vision, dyspepsia, premature middle age and premature old age, bad teeth, bad bones and a host of other miscellaneous ailments are also often the result of vitamin deficiency. Most important of all, greater energy, greater vitality, greater resistance to disease are within the reach of every man, woman and child who will follow the simple directions for avoiding vitamin deficiency.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

WE relate the following story with some hesitancy for though it proves the old Frank Merriwell theme that ingenuity and perseverance win in the end, it might give the men an argument to use when their wives want to get new fur coats . . .

Once upon a time not so very long ago, Ellen Moseley, tall and attractive post deb daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben P. P. Moseley of Commonwealth ave., suddenly realized that she wanted a chinchilla fur coat . . .

Her parents have a beautiful country estate on a hill top in Ipswich which is famous for its colorful gardens and Ellen has a large wardrobe of some of the loveliest gowns in Boston . . . but still she wanted a chinchilla coat . . . She says she knew she couldn't afford a coat of the real fur which is so fabulously priced so she indulged in the process of thought known as logic (Gentlemen readers please note that this process is not entirely foreign to the feminine mind) . . .

Said process in Ellen's mind followed something along these lines—If I want a sandwich what can I do? . . . I can get two pieces of bread and a piece of chicken or something and make a sandwich . . . If I want a sweater I can get some yarn and needles and knit one . . . When I want a chinchilla coat why can't I grow the fur and make one? . . .

Not a bad idea—the only hitch being that no chinchillas were available . . . so being a very resourceful young lady Ellen bought some chinchilla bunnies and raised them until they were big beautiful chinchilla rabbits . . .

Now for the Last Chapter

UNFORTUNATELY, after all this there wasn't quite enough chinchilla rabbit fur (which, incidentally, looks like the real McCoy), to make a full sized coat so Ellen had it made up into a long stole which reaches down to her knees on both sides . . .

The last chapter of our story finds our heroine proudly wearing the fur piece which she had created from a few bunnies and a lot of carrots, at this week's Waltzing Party and looking as sophisticated and modish as a picture out of the latest fashion magazine . . .

Now that she has the fur to keep her snug and cosy she's going South, but it will be perfect for the Opera and late winter parties when she returns . . . She left early this morning for Florida where she will be the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Bartlett at Fort Lauderdale . . .

At the Waltzing Party held in the Somerset Ballroom Ellen danced in a full skirted black velvet gown with long black velvet gloves . . . She was one of the runners-up in the contest to choose the best waltzer of the evening . . . Dorothy Comstock and her partner were awarded the title and will compete at the last waltzing party with winners of other evenings . . . So far Mary Otis, Peggy Stuart and "Deedee" have proved themselves to be the most graceful and expert gliders in three-quarter time . . .

Jack Pierce Beaus Alida Goodwin

JACK PIERCE, whose favorite sport is waltzing, whirled all the pretty girls around the ballroom and engaged attractive Alida Goodwin in earnest conversation between dances . . . Alida wore diamond clips on the shoulder straps of her amethyst satin gown . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Francis were among the many attractive couples whirling and gliding to waltz rhythms and performing the most energetic gyrations whenever the orchestra varied the rhythm with a polka . . . Blonde Mrs. Francis chose a peach net gown with a faille bodice trimmed with diamond clips at each corner of the low square neckline . . . Tiny black bows adorned each side of her hair . . .

JOAN CURTIS and Roger Lapham, Jr., who have been one of our frequently together couples since before Roger's graduation from Harvard, crowded a lot of partying into his recent visit here from California where he is attending law school. Joan is the daughter of Mrs. Benjamin Estabrook of Milton.

Among the additional sponsors for Friday evening's gala party are Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Dunn, Miss Alice Falvey, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Shaughness, Joseph Tumulty, Mr. and Mrs. William Day Murphy, Joseph P. Manning, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Shea, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Byrnes, Dr. and Mrs. Francis Barnes and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fitzgerald.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THEY say that a good business man never has any unfinished business—starts each day with a clean desk. There's a lesson in that for you.

You're always complaining that you can't get anywhere in life—always blaming it on yourself or the other fellow.

"If only," you say to yourself, "I hadn't lost that money—or if Jim could have kept his job—or if Betty hadn't died—or if I could have had a college education—why, then I could have gotten somewhere. But I've never had a chance. The cards have been stacked against me from the start."

Day after discouraged day you say these things to yourself. And you honestly believe in them. Yet the reason for your failure. But you're wrong. That isn't why you don't get ahead.

It isn't the Big Accident or the Major Shock that blocks your ambition or wastes your energy . . . it's the loose ends in your own conduct.

The decisions you've postponed—the risks you've ducked—the childish fears or habits you can't quite relinquish—the memories you can't quite put away—the quarrels you can't quite finish—the job you have not tackled—they're all loose ends. And at first they seem unimportant. Life stretches before you—there's plenty of time to make up your mind, plenty of time to do anything that needs to be done—so you "put things off."

Each day there's a little more clutter. A little more "unfinished business." And presently that clutter begins to accumulate—rises about you in a tangible menace—knee high, heart high, head high—shackling you, smothering you.

And yours is one more wasted life.

DON'T DO THAT to yourself! Don't let yourself be swamped by your own loose ends!

Finish life as you go along. Clean it up, bit by bit.

If there's a decision to be made—MAKE IT! Make it NOW!

"But I'll be wiser tomorrow," you say. "I'll see clearer what I want to do."

Maybe so. But tomorrow will also bring more decisions, new obligations. Don't load today's business on your crowded tomorrow. Do today's business NOW. Do what you need to do today with the wisdom you have today. Maybe it won't be the wisest decision that could be made. But what of it?

Nobody's guess is 100 per cent perfect. Wise or foolish, you'll have it out of the way—and it won't be gumming up your ledger tomorrow.

Also, you gain more by making even a bad decision than by making none at all. IN CHARACTER BUILDING, ONE BRAVE BLUNDER IS WORTH A MILLION CAUTIOUS POSTPONEMENTS.

Go ahead—do SOMETHING and do it NOW.

If you have a decision to face, face it NOW.

If you have a habit to break—start breaking it NOW.

If you have a grief to forget—turn your back on it NOW.

Community Fund Workers Give Victory Party

Wearing red feathers on hats and lapels and even tucked into bracelets, all of Boston's Good Neighbors turned out last evening to celebrate the victory dinner of the 1941 Community Fund Campaign.

The Statler ballroom was so thronged with noisy, enthusiastic fund workers that Henry Guild, fund chairman, resorted to the use of a loud four note taxi horn to restore quiet each time he had an important announcement to make.

Paper streamers, noise-makers and wild enthusiasm greeted news that the fund had gone over the top which means that 200 social and welfare agencies in Greater Boston will again receive financial support from the campaign.

Among the many workers present were Mrs. Bradshaw Reece Jr., dancing with Miss Gertrude Peabody, Miss Lendon Phoenix at a table with Miss Dexter Dodge and several friends, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cook, Mrs. Cecil Goldsmith, Mrs. Taylor Crowninshield, Lally B. Brown, Miss Ellen Hudson, Mrs. Thomas Cotton, Mrs. Thomas Burrage, Mrs. Walter S. Bagnall, Mrs. Charles S. Mayfield, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bell, Mrs. Charles Peverly, Mrs. Randolph K. Byers, Mrs. Alexander Whiteside, Mrs. Henry Guild and many others.

MRS. EDW. J. RHATIGAN PENNY SALE CHAIRMAN

Mrs. Edward J. Rhatigan of Brookline is chairman of the Regis College Guild's annual Penny Sale to be held on Friday, March 7, at the Hotel Touraine.

Mrs. John W. Gahan of Newton Center, president of the Guild, has appointed Mrs. James Allenn of Milton, ticket chairman, and Mrs. G. Frank McDonald of Jamaica Plain, and Mrs. Charles H. Early, are in charge of prizes.

Cheese Dishes With Variety

By MARTHA LEE

NEW AND UNUSUAL economical meat substitutes that will satisfy the healthy appetites of a hungry family are a problem with most homemakers. Cheese, rich in protein, minerals and vitamins, served alone or combined with other foods, is a wise choice. It is well to remember, too, that cheese gives more real food value for the money expended than almost anything else you can buy.

Research shows that the average American family serves cheese in only one or two different ways—namely macaroni and cheese, and rarely cheese in sandwiches or as a separate item. However, cheese is particularly useful in making many bland foods such as potatoes, rice and bread, as well as macaroni and spaghetti into flavorful and interesting dishes. Here are some suggestions:

POTATO AND CHEESE SOUFFLE

potatoes
1 tbsp. butter
1 cup grated cheese
1 tsp. salt
2 eggs, beaten separately
2 onions
½ cup milk
Pepper

Boil potatoes and onions together till tender. Put through potato ricer. Add butter, milk, three-fourths cup cheese, salt and pepper. Beat over hot water until smooth. Add egg yolks and fold in well beaten egg whites. Pour into greased baking dish. Sprinkle with remaining cheese and bake in a moderate oven, 375 deg. F., for 30 minutes, or until brown. Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings.

CHEESE FONDUE

1¼ cups milk
1 cup soft bread crumbs
2 tbsp. butter
½ lb. cheese
2 eggs
Salt, pepper

Heat milk in double boiler, add bread crumbs and butter and cook for a few minutes. Add cheese cut in small pieces, and beaten eggs. Stir until cheese has melted and mixture thickened slightly. Season with salt and pepper. Serve on thin slices of toast or toasted crackers. Makes 4 servings.

The full, rich flavor of cheese combined with well-chosen seasonings, eggs and crumbs combine to make individual cheese rolls that have a tempting aroma and are savory as well. Made in advance and shaped into rolls, they may be stored in the refrigerator for last minute broiling—eliminating last minute preparation on afternoons when you are out. To complete the meal serve with a cooked vegetable such as parsley-buttered carrots or buttered asparagus or broccoli, a salad and a chocolate torte.

INDIVIDUAL CHEESE ROLLS

1 cup canned or fresh, finely chopped mushrooms
2 tsp. finely chopped onion
2 tbsp. butter
2 tbsp. flour
½ cup milk
1½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. dry mustard
Dash of pepper
Few grains cayenne pepper
1½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 cups shredded American cheese
3 hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs

Cook mushrooms and onion in 1 tablespoon butter until light brown. Melt remaining butter in saucepan, add flour, and stir until smooth. Add milk gradually, and cook until mixture thickens, stirring constantly. Add salt, mustard, pepper, cayenne, Worcestershire sauce and cheese; mix thoroughly, and cook until cheese melts.

Combine mushroom-onion mixture, cheese sauce, eggs and crumbs; mix well. Shape into 12 finger length rolls. Place on a baking sheet, and broil about 5 inches below heat until tops are delicately browned. Makes 6 servings.

SAVORY CHEESE ROLLS may be made in advance and stored in the refrigerator, ready to put on the broiler at the last minute.

Permanent Wave

By Isabel Johnston

MR. LOUIE was an artist, a true artist of the permanent wave. He told his customers so and they believed him. His fingers, deftly winding the spiral of the croquinole, gave each strand of hair the caress of genius.

The Cast of Characters in "Permanent Wave"

MR. LOUIE, a coiffeur artist who also is credited with being a penny-pincher.

MARIE, a shampoo girl in love with Mr. Louie, but, apparently, quite hopelessly.

His fellow workers said he was also a very shrewd business man. They said he loved his bank account and his ambition for a shop of his own even more than he loved his "art."

But Marie was only a shampoo girl, occasionally permitted to fingerwave unimportant customers on a rushed Saturday.

Sometimes she caught him gazing at her head. His eyes absorbed, yes, but somehow appraising, almost defensive. She felt he resented the skill with which Nature had given her a natural wave. To make up for it, she jumped to serve him. She anticipated his need for the lotion, the wrappers and the hairpins. As a reward, he permitted her to stay overtime and assist him when he had an evening customer.

AN INVITATION

But he didn't take advantage of the solitude to make love to her. He didn't run his hand through her curls as that fresh Mr. Harry would have done. At times he studied her hair thoughtfully, stroking his brief mustache. Then he would say good night abruptly as if he were not altogether pleased with her. At last, after a siege with a customer almost as tempermental as Mr. Louie himself, the miracle happened.

"You will have dinner with me tonight, Marie," he announced.

Like a true artist, he made it an occasion. By taxi, they went to a select little French restaurant. The dinner was perfection. The potage was as piquant and refreshing as a properly given shampoo. The veal cutlet was browned to a shade truly delicate. The salad curled as crisply as one of Mr. Louie's fingerwaves. Marie was too happy to do more than nibble. Mr. Louie ate heartily and in silence. At last he wiped his mustache momentously.

"I want you to marry me, Marie," he decreed.

"I am opening a salon of my own," he said, and though the words weren't what she expected, there was ardor in his tones, "It will be very exclusive, very expensive. Each customer will be served by Mr. Louis himself—with the assistance of his wife!"

"Maybe we had better not get married until the shop is well established," she suggested timidly.

"You are right. You will make the perfect wife, little Marie," he exulted.

With a flourish, he produced two rings, one with a small diamond and the other a gold band. As he slipped the engagement ring on Marie's finger, he explained that it had belonged to his mother.

Stifling her own romantic wishes, Marie laid a restraining hand on Mr. Louie's arm as he was about to commandeer a taxi. The bus, she pointed out, would mean money saved for the salon. Mr. Louie agreed in an ecstasy of joy at her thrift. At the doorway of her lodging house, he kissed her goodnight as if he had other things on his mind.

In the excitement of showing her ring and announcing the new salon to her fellow workers, Marie forgot her longings for a less businesslike form of love. Yet she could not help sensing a certain pity in their congratulations. It was Mr. Harry who cornered her in an unoccupied booth after hours.

"He is marrying you to keep from paying wages!" he protested.

"Perhaps I am a good business woman, too," Marie defied him.

Even flesh Mr. Harry was silenced. Disregarding the whispers of her fellow workers, Marie flung herself into buying furniture and sewing curtains for the beauty salon as if it were her bridal home. Against an expensive background, she devised hidden economies that delighted Mr. Louie's soul.

The cards informing patrons of the opening of Mr. Louie's salon were as elegant as the wedding announcements of an heiress. No bride could have received more beautiful bouquets on her great day—though Mr. Louie bought a great number of them himself—at a discount—from wholesale florists. Mr. Louie's following crowded his salon.

It was almost like a honeymoon, Marie thought, she in her booth, Mr. Louie in his, working together in beautiful harmony. Lathering her customers' hair deftly, she made the shampoo into a ritual of worship, a tribute to their happiness. Marie began deciding on the furniture for the back room. Proudly she listened to Mr. Louie's enthusiastic sales talk to his customer in the next booth.

"I want a permanent just like Marie's," the customer decided.

Marie paused a moment in her rubbing.

"That will be the oil permanent for $20," Mr. Louis answered smoothly, and as the cusomer hesitated at the price, he added, "A lot of money, certainly, but well worth it."

"Ouch!" cried Marie's customer as Marie's fingers gripped her hair.

"Before she had my special oil treatment, Marie was truly a sad little creature," Mr. Louis lamented. "Her hair was stringy, faded, lifeless . . ."

"Soap m' eyes," Marie's customer protested from the folds in her towel.

"Yes, Marie and I are to be married," Mr. Louie was saying when Marie's customer had subsided. "My special oil permanent made Marie so beautiful, I fell in love with her!"

Through all the rest of her appointments, Marie surpassed herself in speed and energy and skill. Rage drove her into doing fingerwaves that even excelled Mr. Louie's. She worked so magnificently even Mr. Louie noticed it. As she closed up the shop in wordless fury, Mr. Louie condescended to praise her.

"You will get yourself another assistant!" She discarded her apron decisively.

"But——"

She cut short his voluble protestations by stripping his ring from her finger and casting it off among the wrappers and hairpins.

"You will get yourself another fiancee!"

At the doorway, her dignity crumpled. Something about Mr. Louie's abject amazement infuriated her into a burst of temperment that outdid Mr. Louie at his best.

MR. LOUIE REPENTS

"So my hair was dull, faded, lifeless! I was a poor sad little creature no man could love!" she stormed. "You made me beautiful! You gave me my permanent wave!"

"But business——"

"Did you think for one moment I would work for, much less marry such a miserable fraud?"

For three days, Marie barricaded herself in her tiny room, refusing to answer telephone calls, scarcely eating. Mr. Louie was a cheat and a liar, a mercenary scoundrel, but she could not help suffering.

By the third evening, her suffering had turned into a magnificent indifference. When Mr. Louie knocked, she opened the door as if he were a supper tray and she had no appetite. In his arms he carried a huge bouquet. Even with the florist's discount, it must have cost real money.

"You have found a good assistant?" she asked airily.

"I have found . . . I have found that I love you."

"It was a business proposition and you know it."

"Well, yes, it was," he admitted with careful regard for the truth. "I thought you were like my mother, a sensible woman with a good business head. But you are a woman to be adored as well."

Gazing at her naturally curling hair with awe and wistful longing, he ventured

"I have arranged to cancel all appointments for tomorrow . . ."

"We will wait and be married on Sunday," the adored Madam Louie was already in command.

"The salon will lose prestige if we break our word to the customers."

THE END

Before she had my special oil treatment, Marie was truly a sad little creature."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour 2 pints of bile juice into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Then gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks sunk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Take as directed. Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. 10¢ and 25¢.

WHY YOU MAY BE HARD of HEARING

The picture tells why thousands are HARD OF HEARING caused by BUZZING, RINGING, HISSING HEAD NOISES CAUSED UP FEELING IN EARS, DIZZINESS.

Hard, impacted wax plugging up ear canals and freezing upon sensitive ear drums keeps out sound waves, makes your hearing bad.

To remove this wax obstruction that interferes with normal hearing and may cause severe irritation use Orotone Ear Drops as directed. They contain a special ingredient recommended for this purpose by United States Public Health Service.

Mrs. Anna Cowley, San Angelo, Texas, writes, "Orotone is the best medicine I ever found for my hearing."

Get safe Orotone at EPSTEIN DRUG CO., 2 Scollay Square (Only), Boston—you'll be amazed how clearly and distinctly you HEAR again, when wax obstruction is removed.—Advertisement.

chair-back. Consciously sit as tall as you can. You will find you lift yourself a good inch, and are quite comfortable.

When you walk or stand, walk as tall as you can. As one beauty expert puts it:

"Pull your knees up from your ankles; your hips up from your knees; your shoulders up from your hips, and your head up from your shoulders."

Sounds silly, but try it and see!

Of course it doesn't sound silly, Mary. We can see you're doing just that and it's improving your posture no end. See? Now we're throwing bouquets.

SHE FILLED IN CHECKS, HE'S BROKE

tary? A—That's what he called me. I took care of the few books he had.

Q—How many books did he have? A—His household expenses and making out his checks—whatever he wanted me to do in the line of bookkeeping.

BUT DRINK? NEVER!

Q—Who made out the checks? A—I did.

Q—Every check was made out for Mr. Parker and all he did was sign his name? A—Yes.

Q—Who determined the amount? A—He did.

Q—He gave you an automobile? A—No, sir. He gave me the money.

Q—When did he give it to you? A—In 1937. I think he gave me a check as a gift and I paid the bills for the car.

Q—Did you take a drink with Mr. Parker? A—I don't drink.

Q—Did Mrs. Rivers take a drink with Mr. Parker? A—Mrs. Rivers never took a drink with Mr. Parker.

(Mrs. Rivers has been identified as Edith Rivers of Lawrence, former housekeeper for Parker.)

HE GAVE AWAY $500

Q—Did you see anything wrong with Mr. Parker's mental condition? A—I didn't see anything wrong.

Q—You knew he was agitation for days at the Malden Hospital? A—Yes.

Q—You knew he had two clocks? A—Yes.

Q—You know he was supposed to have given $500 to someone he didn't know and whom he met on the street? A—He told me so.

The judge here interrupted to question the witness regarding Dr. George E. Bernsdorf, who deposited Parker's will in the custody of the probate registry July 27, 1937, a will which gives Mrs. Bell two-thirds of the estate and Mrs. Rivers one-third. Mrs. Bell has testified that Dr. Bernsdorf worked in her beauty shop.

VERSATILE FOOT DOCTOR

"Well, this Mr. Bernsdorf you refer to both as Dr. and Mrs.," asked the judge, "was he a doctor?"

"I think he was a foot doctor," Mrs. Bell replied.

"He was a foot doctor doing hair dressing?"

"Yes. He wasn't practicing as a foot doctor."

Atty. McLaughlin then resumed his cross-examination:

Q—Did you go to Indiana with Bernsdorf? A—No, sir.

Q—Did he go with your party—Mr. and Mrs. Van? A—Yes.

Q—Did your husband know about that trip? A—Yes.

Q—Why did you go to Indiana? A—To visit Mr. and Mrs. Van's parents.

Q—Who paid your expenses? A—I did.

High-Hat House Votes Senators Must Remove Shoes

Olympia, Wash., Feb. 6 (AP)—Piqued because of a State Senate rule that visitors must remove their hats, the House of Representatives passed with a whoop a resolution that senators must remove their shoes in the House chamber.

Rep. Charles Todd, author of the resolution, said "the House has twice as many members as the Senate, so I think we can be just as high-hat."

The resolution passed unanimously, but Speaker Edward J. Reilly saved the senators' dignity by ruling loudly that it had lost.

SID MERCER says:

Mathewson Best of All, Roger Bresnahan Insists

NEW YORK, FEB. 6—When Roger Bresnahan was baseball's greatest catcher, Eddie Brannick was the office boy for the Giants. That was over 35 years ago.

Roger Bresnahan

Looking at Bresnahan as he sat in the roomy, richly carpeted office of Secretary Eddie Brannick, you were amazed to note how lightly the years have dealt with the man who was the backstopping spark-plug of the 1905 Giants, John J. McGraw's first world's championship club—the man who caught the immortal Mathewson's three shutouts against the Athletics in the World Series.

A chunky athlete in his prime, Bresnahan weighs scarcely five pounds more now. He stands erect, his mop of dark-brown hair as thick as in the days when he had to toss it out of his eyes.

There are no gray strands or bald spots in that thatch, and Roger asserts he has never had to resort to the "old Bixby's." Only when he puts on his spectacles to read do you realize that baseball's original "Rajah" is crowding 60.

He's the same restless fellow that he was in his heyday at the Polo Grounds. He's mellowed but he retains his old aggressiveness.

Sitting in a chair talking about old times, Bresnahan displayed his old alertness and a remarkable memory. The fingers of his right hand were constantly moving. That's an old habit Roger says he has never outgrown. He acquired it by learning from Luther (Dummy) Taylor the one-hand sign language nearly 40 years ago.

Introduced Shin Guards

BRESNAHAN is now a special representative for a brewery in Toledo, his home town. He made his first visit to New York in several years to attend the baseball writers' dinner and when he was introduced to an assemblage of more than 1000 fans, many of whom remembered the day when he introduced the first pair of shin guards at the Polo Grounds, Roger got a real thrill.

"They showed they hadn't forgotten me," he said. "Many of them laughed at those shin guards, but all catchers wear them today."

The talk got around to a discussion of great pitchers. Some of the boys put in for Carl Hubbell as the greatest left-hander and started to compare Bob Feller with Walter Johnson.

"Matty still is the No. 1 pitcher in my book," stoutly argued Bresnahan. "Guess they've sort of forgotten him around here. And I'll take Nap Rucker for my left-hander. Eddie Plank wasn't bad, either. Yes, they pitched the dead ball, but they fooled the hitters and would fool them today.

"You've got to take pitchers over a stretch of years. We had many like Mordecai Brown, Orvie Overall and Joe McGinnity, who were good over comparatively short stretches. Matty was up there for 15 years. Feller may be as great some day. He's young and getting a great start."

All five of the 1905 World Series games were shutouts. Bresnahan caught in all five, handling McGinnity in the fourth game, in which the "Iron Man" beat Plank, 1 to 0. The lone Philadelphia victory was Chief Bender's 3 to 0 triumph over McGinnity. Andy Coakley, New York insurance executive and baseball coach at Columbia University, was a 9 to 0 victim of Mathewson in the third game.

Matty Had Everything

"I GUESS that was pitching," asserted Bresnahan with a show of that old Giant spirit. "I'll tell you why Matty was tops. He had a fast ball, a fine curve, a great change of pace, and when he had to bear down he came over with that fadeaway.

"No pitcher ever had greater control than Big Six. He could put that ball where he wanted it. His control really placed him at a disadvantage, for the batters knew they wouldn't be hit. So they took toe holds. Why old Gum Boots went one whole season and nearly the next one without hitting a batter.

"That's pitching, my friends."

JOE DI MAGGIO REFUSES TO SIGN NEW CONTRACT

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6—All this high salary war between Cleveland and Detroit over their favorite pitchers has set Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees a-thinking.

Or at least it seemed so today when the thumper, generally recognized as the present baseball "great," let it be known that he is dissatisfied with his 1941 contract offer.

Although he refused to commit himself too much on what's paid Bob Feller and Buck Newsom, both given contracts calling for $30,000, the dean of all the DiMaggio boys—and they're quite a tribe—said he was returning unsigned his latest offer.

NO DAY OFF FOR JOE

Joe didn't say what he wanted or what he had been offered, but indicated it was too near his $32,500 received last year.

However, around the baseball loop the boys all were saying that Joe is none too pleased about all this high salary talk about Newsom and Feller.

After all, he's still the game's big slugger and all-around man. And a pitcher only works about every five days, while DiMaggio is out there doing his bit every day in the week.

MORE THE BETTER

The North Beach Italian professed to have little interest in the $30,000 reportedly given Bob Feller in his Cleveland Indian contract, or in a similar amount guaranteed Buck Newsom by Detroit.

"They're entitled to as much as they can get and the more the better," said DiMaggio. "Their cases, however, have no effect on what I'm asking."

DiMaggio said he weighed 196 pounds at present. "I really got in shape playing around in the snow in Minnesota, and I expect to report at the training camp in St. Petersburg, Fla., in the best shape I have ever been at the start of the season."

IN LINE—Ace Parker, right, greatest of all professional football players, signs with Brooklyn Dodgers. Owner Dan Topping, left, and Coach Jock Sutherland look on.

BURBANK, Cal., Feb. 6 (AP)—[illegible] automobile accident, James J. Jeffries, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, was reported near collapse today, following the death of his wife in an accident [illegible] after she was struck by a car as she crossed a street. The driver was not held.

Conley Clan of Southie Backs New Star in Ring

The grand old fighting name of Conley is back in the limelight. This time it's Ken Conley, 18-year-old South Boston lad, who will appear in the 135-pound class of the Diamond Belt championships, sponsored by the Irish-American A. A., at the Arena next Monday night.

Ken is the son of Larry Conley, professional lightweight of another era, and the brother of Paul Conley, who was a leading 160-pound amateur only a few years back.

Ken is a most promising prospect and there are many who expect to see him lift the title in his class Monday.

Good boys in the same class with him are Steve Bomal, 24-year-old Lowell truck driver; Sam Di Vincenzo, 24-year-old shoemaker from Haverhill, and Harry Medugno, 18-year-old Everett boy.

Perhaps the best class in the tournament will be the middleweight. Herein are Billy Connolly, B. U. student from Roxbury, who used to hold his share of titles when he was doing more boxing than studying a couple of years ago; Sol Cesario, 20-year-old West End boy, the Golden Gloves champion and recent conqueror of Larry Pacino; Jack Kearney, Brookline boy who looms as a budding champion; George Berlandi, 22-year-old clerk from the North End, whose terrific punching power put him in the spotlight in last Monday night's final tryouts.

In the other divisions boys from Massachusetts and Rhode Island are entered, and 24 action bouts are promised.

Dodgers Buy Dedham Boy

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 6 (AP)—The St. Louis Browns announced the sale on a conditional basis, of Left Handed Pitcher Howard Mills of Dedham, Mass., to the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Mills will go to training camp with the National Leaguers and if he is not troubled with a sore arm will remain with the club.

Harlem Colored Yanks Play Good-Wins Here

It would seem almost impossible to improve on the caliber of basketball and the thrills that featured the finish of the games between the Good-Wins and the Foster Machine Co. of Westfield the last two Sundays, but if any game is capable of providing more sensational feats it is next Sunday afternoon's contest between the Harlem Colored Yankees of New York and the Good-Wins at Somerville High School gym at 3 o'clock.

CHIMPS BECOME MUSICIANS

Baby chimpanzees that are musicians.

That's the startling story of Bubbles and Maggie and Jake, members of Warren Buck's wild animal exhibit, who are thrilling the crowds still making attendance records at the annual Sportsmen's and Boat Show in Mechanics Building.

Every one of the three chimpanzees can really play a jewsharp and they take time out for concerts between the swinging from tree to tree.

The jewsharps are only home made—just elastics that the little fellows stretch from their teeth—but the music that comes out would put a music box to shame.

Bubbles and Maggie play with their right hands while Jake is a lefty.

SPRAYED BY COBRA VENOM

But these three chimpanzees are far from being the only reason for the popularity of Warren Buck's unique mother and baby exhibit. Buck is the leading importer of wild animals in this country and has established the remarkable record of having captured and brought back to this country over 500 animals for 20 consecutive years.

With that record as a background it is little wonder that this collector of wild animals from the four corners of the world is attracting wide attention by his unusual exhibit.

Buck has had many hair raising adventures—a cobra spraying him squarely in the eye with his deadly venom—or wrestling bouts with boa constrictors—but he'll tell you he hasn't had any thrilling experiences. They are all just taken in stride, the ordinary, every-day experiences of any collector or dealer in wild animals. That's all.

FURS INTEREST WOMEN

Just outside Buck's exhibit is the collection of reptiles which Mrs. Eugenia Shorrock has exhibited at the Sportsmen's Shows for the past ten years. There is no question but that her great collection of every type of snake is one of the features of the show just as it has been for many years past.

On the same top floor of Mechanics Building is found John Turner, the Indian trapper from Temagami, Ontario, more than a thousand miles distance from Boston.

His assortment of beautiful skins of every description has attracted wide attention, particularly among the women.

The stolid, ruggedly built Ojibway Indian says that he is known in his own little village as "Quiwesaens," which, ironically enough, means "Small Boy." Yet John hits the scales at around the two hundred-pound mark.

Morgan Upsets Westenberg

Ben Morgan took the second and third falls to beat Marvin Westenberg in the Arena wrestling feature last night before 4500 fans. Westy won the first in 21:52 with a lift and slam, but Morgan rallied for falls at 11:33 and 13:36 with a body press and a lift and slam for victory.

The Green Dragon beat Matty Jones in 27:53; Pantaleon Manlapig beat Andy Meiner in 11:25; Tom O'Toole beat Cowboy Govro in 11:30 and George Linehan beat Everett Kibbons in 14:37.

WEINBERG WILL TEST SKHOR

Johnny Skhor, Baltimore, one of the more promising of the nation's young heavyweight crop, will be given another testing a week from tonight in one of the 10-round main bouts of a Goodwin A. C. boxing show at the Boston Garden.

Skhor, on that occasion, will step into the ring with Bill Weinberg from Chelsea, a recent graduate of the amateur ranks who has been performing well in professional starts.

GRUDGE FIGHT

Matchmaker Rip Valenti of the Goodwin A. C. has Skhor and Weinberg signed and is now working on the supporting card for the twin co-features, the first of which was clinched earlier in the week.

This is a neighborhood grudge fight between wrangling residents of East Boston, Salvatore Bartolo and George Salamone, who have been anxious for a go at one another for many months.

Twice before Salamone and Bartolo were set to fight for the Goodwin club. First Bartolo was injured in training and then Salamone was wounded in a gym workout. Both times Valenti, refusing to let them fight unless in perfect condition, cancelled shows.

BEAT DELL'ORTA

Bartolo, who has been fighting frequently in New York, won over Vin Dell'orta there Monday night and is now in training for Salamone. He plans to remain in New York until early next week, for he has established headquarters in the big city.

Salamone is drilling daily here. He hasn't been idle, working often in Fall River and New Bedford.

Their rivalry is so bitter that Boston may be treated to one of its finest fights when Salamone and Bartolo, who live around the corner from one another on the Noddle Island, square off.

Munski Mad Enough To Win Hunter Mile

By HERB FINNEGAN

Although Chairman Dez Wadsworth picks Chuck Fenske to win the Hunter Mile in the 52d annual B. A. A. meet at the Garden, Saturday (and Chuck certainly is due), the boys who competed at Millrose last Saturday claim John Munski not only will win the race but crack the record in the bargain.

Munski, they say, was so mad after the Millrose mile that nobody could get near him for 10 minutes. He kept berating himself all the time he was dressing. It was the second week in a row he had been beaten by Walter Mehl, and he blamed it all on his poor racing judgment.

OUTSMARTED TWICE

Mehl had nipped him by an eyelash in 4:09.7 at the K. of C. meet in Boston the week before, a new

JOHN MUNSKI

Boston record. That wasn't hard to take, but when young Leslie MacMitchell and Chuck Fenske, as well as Mehl, finished ahead of him at Millrose his indignation knew no bounds.

It was an odd setup. In the K. of C. meet Luigi Beccali carried the field to the 880 mark in 2:04.4. At Millrose, Beccali was absent, nobody would get out front and hit it up, and as a result, the half was reached in the slow time of 2:13. Time for the mile was 4:13.6.

SHOULD BE FAST FINISH

But fast half or slow half, Munski was outsmarted both times. And he's still burning. There is only one way he can square himself and that is not only to win Saturday night but to crack the record as well. And that's just what he plans to do.

He hasn't unveiled his racing plans but you can bet he won't delay his sprint so long as he has the past two weeks. We look for him to bang it out in the third quarter much as Joie Ray used to do in the old days. He'll probably try to pile up such a lead in that third quarter that he can stagger the rest of the way and still finish in front.

No doubt Borican or Beccali will see to it that the half is reached in 2:04 or better. If Munski bangs out fast in that third quarter, what fun will be watching Mehl, MacMitchell and Fenske trying to catch him during the last two or three laps.

The big name milers are all participating in the Pennac Mile tomorrow night in Philadelphia. Because of this, fans have been asking whether that wouldn't slow them up for Saturday's meet here. The only answer is this: Three years ago, Glenn Cunningham ran in Philadelphia Friday, then set the present Hunter Mile record of 4:10 here the next night.

The two-mile field was completed today with the announcement that Eino Penttl, former national 10,000 meters champion; Vincent Tiernan of Manhattan College and George De George of the New York A. C. will compete against Greg Rice, Don Lash, Bobby Madrid, Forrest Efaw and Joe McCluskey.

Rice and Lash each hold a leg on the Billings two-mile trophy and if either one of them can repeat Saturday, the trophy is his. That gives promise of a new Boston record in the event. Lash holds it at 8:58, set in the 1937 F. A. A. meet before Rice reached prominence. That 8:58 mark, incidentally, was a world record at the time

Northeastern jumps into the major league Saturday when it sends its crack two-mile relay against Fordham, Manhattan, N. Y. U. and Seton Hall. Fordham is the team to beat in this race, though Manhattan did 7:56.4 here in the K. of C. meet. Northeastern's Carroll twins are flying, however, and they should be able to match the New Yorkers' efforts.

There will be no 300 at the B. A. A. meet, and it's just as well. The race is simply a first corner fight, and the one who gets it invariably wins. Since Hal Davis found out last Saturday that he couldn't take the turns, all interest was lost in the event, which was originally scheduled just so Bostonians could get a peek at the California Comet in more than one event.

• • •

Davis will face the following opponents in the Briggs 50-yard dash: Herbert Thompson, Fred Wolcott, Eulace Peacock, Bob Jackson, Gil Walker, Bob McGlone and Lawrence Ritter. Wolcott is the flying Texan who won both dash and hurdles at the V. F. W. meet here.

Huskies' Coach Has Cure for Obesity

Northeastern's basketball coaches have a sure cure for obesity and Vin Labowitz of Maynard is ready to vouch for it.

Labowitz, a freshman basketball star three years ago, had been out of competition until last week when he reported in the hope that he could bolster the unfortunate Husky squad. He weighed 197 pounds when he checked in for his suit.

Coaches Jimmy Dunn and Harold Kopp took one look at Lab and decided that the Maynard boy needed running and plenty of it. Labowitz worked hard for the first week and lost nine pounds. He has dropped four more this week and he expects to lose at least five more before the season is over.

Aside from acting as a guinea pig for reducing experiments, he is likely to help the squad considerably. He played briefly against Springfield at a guard position last Saturday night, but he has been moved to forward this week and probably will fill that spot against Clark on Saturday.

NEW CHALLENGER FOR WOMEN'S GOLF LAURELS

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 6 (AP)—A new challenger for winter women's golf laurels, Jane Crum of Orangeburg, S. C., took her place in the semifinals of the Palm Beach tournament today after a thrilling 20th hole victory over Medalist Elizabeth Hicks of Pasadena, Cal.

Miss Crum, one down at the turn, staged a subpar comeback on the second nine to square the match, and won with a birdie two on the second extra hole.

The South Carolina miss faced Grace Amory of Palm Beach in one semi-final bracket today, with Dorothy Gardner of Steubenville, O., playing Jean Bauer of Providence, R. I., in the other.

Miss Amory, runner-up to Miss Hicks in the Miami Biltmore tournament last week, trounced Mrs Miriam Hopps-Lyon of Miami, 7 and 5.

Miss Bauer eliminated Diana Fishwick Critchley, former British champion, 4 and 3, while Miss Gardner outputted Nancy McClave of Maplewood, N. J., 1 up

Kovacs Faces Hal Surface

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 6 (AP)—Seeded favorites, some of whom had troubled surviving the quarter-finals, clashed today in the South Florida tennis tournament.

Frank Kovacs of Oakland, the California clown, encountered Hal Surface of Kansas City as his next hurdle on the way toward a fifth consecutive tournament triumph.

Top-seeded Bobby Riggs of Chicago matched strokes with Ed Alloo of Rollins College. Bitsy Grant of Atlanta, perennial upset artist, met Jack Kramer of Los Angeles.

The women's division began action today, with Pauline Betz of Rollins College seeded number one and a school-mate, Dorothy May Bundy, banked just behind her. Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke of New York was seeded third and Louise Raymond of Scarsdale, N. Y., fourth.

HARVARD NIPS TUFTS

Harvard basketball teams took two from Tufts as the varsity won 33-32 and the yearlings trounced Jumbo Frosh 51-35, at Medford.

Buckley scored the varsity's winning basket with less than 30 seconds to play.

REMODEL NEW YORK TRACKS

By the Associated Press

The clubhouse at Hialeah is buzzing with talk of another potential threat for the Flamingo Stakes in Mrs. Payne Whitney's The Rhymer. This son of St. German's (sire of Twenty Grand) ran off with a six-furlong purse last week without being fully roused by Jockey Eddie Arcaro, and, while not a rugged campaigner, left the impression that he has what it takes. Trainer John Gaver explained "he's a delicate colt, the kind you can't do much for or with, so his future will depend on him."

While the gee-gees are running at the winter playgrounds, there's a couple of million dollars' worth of constructing going on at the New York tracks. Jamaica's million-dollar program is taking definite shape, with steel for the new clubhouse already erected and work on the new grandstand underway.

At Aqueduct, where the second $600,000 improvement job within a year is underway, all foundations for new stands already have been set. Belmont is spending $250,000, which will include a new tote board, giving total on all three pools—win, place and show — for each race.

Under the supervision of its new president, George H. Bull, Empire has removed several stables to enlarge its parking area and is building two new barns with a capacity of 83 stalls.

The "chalk" players were still slightly shell-shocked today from the going over the long-shots gave them at Hialeah yesterday, with Amnesty in the last race the only favorite to click on the card.

Pro League Fans Ask:

Did Halas Pull Fast One, Or Is Bell Covering Up?

By LAWTON CARVER

International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (INS)—The club-owners of the National Professional Football League reluctantly waved the flag of truce at each other today as they moved into the first stages of a long hangover from a bitter argument, result of the alleged railroading of Notre Dame's Elmer Layden into the position of commissioner for the circuit.

The immediate reaction to the outhursts on the part of the magnates against each other in the hiring of Layden was that the league had missed its greatest chance to clinch the public's confidence and admiration.

Moreover, that the league, perhaps unwittingly, had heaped upon Layden more embarrassment than he had ever experienced before in all his career dating back even beyond his days as a member of the Four Horsemen

PROS MUFFED ONE

His was the position of some one courted, engaged but unwanted, and he, mind you, is Elmer Layden, head coach and athletic director of Notre Dame and "a link between the grab present and the golden age when he was making football history under Knute Rockne.

It would take the professional footballers to pull one like this.

Where right and wrong start and end, no one can tell off-hand from the conflicting statements of the club-owners, but the general agreement seems to be that they have muffed one in turning the hiring of Layden into a bickering match.

If his hiring was unconstitutional, then George Halas of the Chicago Bears is to blame; if it wasn't, then those who challenged the move must be held accountable.

Not that we are shedding any tears for Layden. He is to get $20,000 a year for five years, and that was good enough to lure him away from Notre Dame and the increasing pressure being brought to bear against his coaching.

But the point seems to be that pro football made its biggest strides forward in hiring him, then backslid twice as far in letting this highly commendable procedure deteriorate into a fang and claw dispute.

Young Alexis Thompson, owner of the Pittsburgh club, Bert Bell, co-owner of the Philadelphia club, and Dan Topping, who owns the Brooklyn Dodgers, all joined up in demanding to know how Layden came to be put in.

Derby Started Miss Landry on Road to Fame

By WALTER KILEY

Twenty-three-year-old Carmelita Landry, Fitchburg's Cinderella Girl of the ice, will stand out as a shining example of faith and devotion to a fixed purpose and ambition to some couple of hundred New England girls as they line up for the Silver Skates Derby races at Boston Garden a week from Sunday.

NATIONAL CHAMPION — Carmelita Landry of Fitchburg receives Bess Ehrhardt trophy from Carol Ann Tobin at 1939 Silver Skates Derby at Garden. It was Miss Landry's first major triumph. Recently she won national and North American women's titles. At the right: Miss Landry in action.

For the little miss who overcame tremendous physical handicaps through sheer determination, who during the past 10 days became recognized as America's greatest woman skater, was just two years ago bracing herself against the mark in the American-Record Silver Skates Derby competition at the Garden.

Miss Landry broke out a blinding sprint into the finish to win the 1939 Silver Skates Derby senior championship for women from one of the fastest fields ever lined up in Boston, and with it the Bess Ehrhardt Trophy.

FIRST NEW ENGLANDER

Spurred by the taste of victory, her confidence bolstered, she took the long jump into national competition, turned in an amazing record a year ago and now in the course of the past week has proven herself one of the grandest champions this country ever boasted in any of its many sports channels.

She became first New England girl ever to win a national speed skating title when she ran away with the women's speed skating championship at La Cross, Wisconsin, a week ago.

A few days later she made a clean sweep of the outstanding United States championships by turning in a grand slam of the North American speed events for women at Schenectady, N. Y., over the past week-end.

LOST SIGHT IN ONE EYE

Carmelita's career might well serve as an object lesson to every boy as well as girl in our sports arenas and to every one of this year's Silver Skates Derby field who looks with longing eye on even greater triumphs.

For Miss Landry was handicapped from early childhood by the loss of sight in her right eye She was haunted by the thought of making public appearances and not until she was 18 could she be inveigled into trying herself in speed skating.

Once committed, she forged to the front fast and in five short years climaxed a great success story

Living in Boston then, Miss Landry lighted a match to see how much gas remained in a tank. The

FOXX HOST TO GOLFING BALL PLAYERS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 6 (AP)—The annual titanic exhibition of golf in the raw between the country's baseball heroes begins in a burst of strong language at the Jungle Club course here today.

Nothing much is at stake except a good looking statuette and a lot of fairways equipment, but Paul Derringer didn't bear down harder trying to strike out Billy Sullivan in the last World Series than he will in trying to out-stay the Detroit catcher for the next four days. The boys take their golf seriously and controversially, both.

WES WON THRICE

Today there is an 18-hole qualifying round, with the low 32 diamond devotees entering the championship flight of match play starting tomorrow and winding up in a volcanic 36-hole final on Sunday.

The dominating figure of the tournament and the man every ball player dreams of trimming is Wes Ferrell, the former Cleveland, Boston and way-stops pitching ace. Wes wears glasses now and his right arm has lost its zing, but he's a tough golfer.

There have been five previous tournaments and Ferrell has won three of them, including the last two. The only ones to break through on him were Sammy Byrd in 1937 and Paul Waner in 1938. Byrd is a professional now, but Waner is here with bells on.

DERRINGER DANGEROUS

The host is none other than Jimmie Foxx of the Boston Red Sox, one of the all-time hitting greats and considerable of a golfer. Jimmie leases and runs the Jungle Club course.

They say he is losing money on it, but, still, it isn't every ball player who has the distinction of operating his own golf course.

If Ferrell is to be dethroned it might be by Derringer, who carried him two extra holes in the semifinals last winter:

OLYMPICS AT PEAK FOR PACE SETTERS

Out to Score Third Victory

By SAM BROGNA

League-leading Washington Eagles, losers of their last four games, will furnish the opposition for the Boston Olympics tonight at the Garden in an Eastern Amateur Hockey League match.

The Olympics will have more than one motive in their minds when they face the representatives from Washington. Since the start of the season, these Eagles have been the only outfit in the league that the locals have failed to defeat on Boston ice.

Both clubs have met eight times, with Redvers MacKenzie's Birds finishing on top seven. Only Boston victory was registered, 4 to 2, at Washington during their eight-game win streak. Outside this, Coach Harrington's crew has been far from successful.

Having won their last two games, the Pics will be out to stretch their string to three, and at the same time hand the Eagles their fifth straight loss.

Chances of accomplishing all this appear very bright, since Coach Hago will have his strongest club on hand.

Dan Sullivan, who has been nursing an injured shoulder, will be back in uniform and playing on Boston ice for the first time in a month.

He will take over his left wing post on the first line with Paul Guibord and Frankie Spain.

Dave "Harpo" Walsh will also be on hand and team with Ed Barry and Johnnie Fitzgerald on the third line.

Jackie Costello, who has been playing sensationally during Sullivan's absence, has been dropped to the second wave. He will hold down the left wing post with Bob Jeremiah returning to his normal position, right wing, and Gerry Desrosiers in the middle.

Relieving Ty Anderson and Cliff Thompson at the points will be Al Yourkewicz and Al Baronowski.

Junpics Win League Title

The Junior Olympics clinched the Commonwealth League title when they routed the Fitchburg Maroons, 16-5, and the Lynn Crescents came from behind in the last period with a little more than a minute to go to gain a 3-3 deadlock with the Boston Reds in a pair of league games at the Garden.

resultant explosion not only cost her the sight of one eye but left the lid drooping. Operations have helped but have not cured and she can still see but shadows to the right of her.

YET TO REACH PEAK

It is little wonder that the former Silver Skates Derby champion was royally toasted and feted on her recent triumphal return to Fitchburg. A crowd of more than 15,000 townsfolk led by Mayor Alfred Woollacott greeted her at the station and launched a long round of dinners and receptions.

Miss Landry is now merely on the threshhold of the fame which awaits her. She has yet to reach her peak. Should there be Olympic games in the future, she is certain to be the women's speed skating standard bearer—and a worthy one.

Similar fortune may well be reserved for many a girl who will take to the Boston Garden ice on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 16. Few in these races will be subjected to the hardships which Miss Landry endured and conquered.

TOMORROW DEADLINE

But it is now of paramount importance that every girl who has to date been hesitant about entering the Derby contention through doubt of her ability, and every boy, too, join the party immediately.

Entries close FOR GOOD with tomorrow night's last mails and only those who beat the deadline hour can be accepted.

Girls and boys too, Miss Landry's case proves how nothing can keep you from reaching your goal in life, whether it be Silver Skates Derby racing, or anything else, if you'll work at it hard enough and persevere.

If you haven't yet sent in your entry, please do so today. It's a last chance, and we want every one of you in our Derby party.

Maguire B. C. Star

The number of two-sport stars at Boston College can be counted on one hand. Two of the fast dying species are at present cavorting with Coach John "Snooks" Kelley's championship hockey squad.

Brighton's Joe Maguire, good looking senior defenseman who is also shortstop on the varsity nine, and Wally Boudreau, rugged sophomore center from Cambridge, who only recently handed in football equipment, are the standout "double" sport stars at Boston College today.

For the record, there are no triple sport standouts at Boston College. Many have the talent but not the time.

Maguire and Boudreau, with the rest of the 10-straight winning Boston College ice squad, are looking forward to their return to the hockey wars after an absence of two weeks.

The Johnny Pryor captained Eagles go after their 11th victory of the season Saturday when they meet Colby at the latter's rink in Waterville. The contest is an important New England League clash.

Maguire, son of a sergeant of the Boston police force, Capt. Pryor and Wally Cuenin are the only senior members of the powerful Eagle squad.

Pryor, a Framingham boy and a graduate of the Bay State Scholastic Hockey League, has owned a hockey 'rep" since way back when. Maguire, on the other hand, has only recently established his ice greatness.

Joe attended St. Columbkille's school in Brighton where he won letters in football, baseball and hockey.

After his matriculation at Boston College he concentrated on the ice and diamond games. He "made" both the hockey and baseball teams as a freshman.

Last spring he was the regular shortstop on the Freddy Maguire (no relation) coached nine and for three winters he's been a valuable member of the varsity ice squads.

Teaming with big Bob Mee, the Brighton boy has been a sensation ever since. He's expected to be just as valuable to the Eagle nine.

4 SCHOOL COACHES AID BROWN

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 6 (AP)—Four high school men were among seven assistants hired by Ohio State University today to aid Football Coach Paul Brown, who three weeks ago jumped from a scholastic position to the collegiate big time.

Three of them were Brown's chief assistants at Massillon, O., High School, where championship teams won him a reputation as a "miracle mentor."

H. S. COACHES NOMINATE

Ohio State, the nation's fifth largest university, is perhaps the only major school with a football staff dominated by high school men. Five of Ohio State's eight posts now are held by coaches fresh from scholastic competition.

Brown is the first high school mentor to win a Western Conference head coach berth since Illinois hired the veteran Bob Zuppke.

Here's Brown's staff:

C. C. Widdoes, backfield coach; Paul Bixler, ends; Fritz Mackey, tackles; Hugh McGranahan, guards; Eddie Blickle, varsity reserves; Trevor Rees, freshman coach, and Fred Heisler, assistant freshman coach.

TWO HOLDOVERS

Widdoes, McGranahan and Heisler were with Brown at Massillon and Rees, former Ohio State star end, came from Shaw High at East Cleveland (O.). Bixler has been at Colgate. Mackey and Blickle are holdovers from the regime of Francis A. Schmidt, who resigned Dec. 16 along with his entire staff.

Cantab Sextets Duel at Garden

The Greater Boston schoolboys swing into their 11th round of competition today with a brace of games scheduled for the Garden ice.

Stoneham and Arlington meet in the opener today at 3:30 o'clock, with Cambridge Latin and Rindge Tech clashing in their annual city series in the nightcap.

Tomorrow, Belmont takes on Newton and league-leading Melrose faces Medford. And on Saturday, with the scene shifting to the Arena, all eight clubs again meet.

Also on today's menu is the second last round of the Boston Conference. Brighton and Charlestown, meeting in the first game at the Arena, will close their hockey season. East Boston and Hyde Park will also see action for the last time this season when they meet each other on the last game of the afternoon.

WILLIE HOPPE TOPS IN BILLIARD TOURNEY

CHICAGO, Feb. 6 (INS)—Willie Hoppe, the defending champion, took over sole possession of first place today in the 1941 world three-cushion billiards tournament.

With nine straight victories, he was the only undefeated player in the field of 18.

Jay Boseman of Vallejo, Cal., who had been keeping pace with the champion, dropped his first match in ten last night, bowing to Joe Chamaco of Mexico City, the Mexican champion, 50 to 45. Bozeman thus became tied with Jake Schaefer of Cleveland for runner-up honors with nine wins and one loss.

Hoppe's ninth victory was the closest in his string and one of the hardest fought of the meet. He edged out John Fitzpatrick of Los Angeles, 50-49, only after the lanky westerners had thrilled an overflow crowd of 1500 by taking a 49-48 lead. Hoppe ran out the needed two billiards in the 58th inning.

Tonight, Hoppe will take on Chamaco, and in another important match Allen Hall of Chicago, chasing the leaders with a record of eight wins and only one defeat, will face Art Thurnblad of Kenosha, Wis.

The afternoon schedule sent Fitzpatrick against Earle Lookabaugh of Chicago, Art Rubin of New York against Tiff Denton of Kansas City and Paul Lewin of Chicago against Irving Crane of Livonia, N. Y.

Four players have completed all their 17 games. They are Clarence Jackson of Detroit, who won five and lost 12; Joe Moriarty of Chicago, who won four and lost 13; Len Kenney of Chicago, winner of only one match, and Herb Peterson of St. Louis, who lost all his games.

Ex-British Champ Killed by Auto

LONDON, Feb. 6 (AP)—James "Tancy" Lee, 59, former holder of the British flyweight and featherweight boxing titles, died today of injuries received last night when knocked down by a bus in Leith.

Lee won his greatest fame in the ring in 1915 when he knocked out Jimmy Wilde in 17 rounds to win the flyweight title and the Lonsdale belt. He continued in active competition until he was 45 years old.

HORSEMAN ITCHING TO GET BACK

CLEVELAND, Feb. 6 (AP)—Don Miller would be glad to carry on for the famed "Four Horsemen" in the Notre Dame football coaching job. But, he calmly added today, he knows he won't get it.

"I wouldn't have a chance," declared the 38-year-old Cleveland attorney. "They wouldn't even consider me. They want someone who has been active in football."

That makes him the only member of the 1922-23-24 mail-carrying quartet not directly involved in South Bend's current employment situation.

COUNTS SELF OUT

Fullback Elmer Layden started things by quitting the Notre Dame post, paying something like $10,000, to become "czar" of the National Pro Football League at double that annual salary.

Donald Charles Miller set up after graduation in a Cleveland law practice with some of his brothers. But he didn't forget football.

He was backfield coach at Georgia Tech for four years starting in 1925. The last of his four years at Georgia Tech the team went to the Rose Bowl, where Roy Riegels of California made the famous "backward run."

OPEN FOR BIDS

The next four years were spent as backfield mentor at Ohio State. When Miller's salary was cut in half for the 1933 season, he quit.

Nibbles for head coaching jobs came from Alabama ($10,000 per for three years), North Carolina State ($8000) and Auburn ($6000), "but I turned thehm all down."

"If I had known the law business was going to pot in the last few years I'd have taken one of those jobs," said Miller. "I hated to give up football and I still have the itch. If I got a good offer now from a good university, I'd take it."
